A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

REPORT.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE

THE LORDS OF COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL ON EDUCATION IN SCOTLAND.

We have the honour to present to your Lordships the Second Annual Report of the Board of Education for Scotland, being that for the year 1874.

A considerable portion of our first Report was necessarily devoted to an account of the steps taken by the Board to prepare for the election of school boards and other preliminary measures, of which no account requires to be taken in the present Report.

Preliminary Work of last Year.

One of the provisions of the Education (Scotland) Act (sec. 67) declares that no parliamentary grant shall be made in aid of building, enlarging, improving, or fitting up any school, except in pursuance of a written application from a school board sent to the Scottish Education Department, on or before the 31st day of December 1873. Owing to the limited period which was thus allowed for transmitting such applications, the schemes forwarded to us by a number of the school boards were hastily prepared, and were found, on careful examination, to require extensive alterations. After the lapse of some months, a change of opinion took place among the members of a considerable number of school boards, who became alarmed at the expense which would be incurred in carrying out their original scheme, or were influenced by representations from the ratepayers, urging the adoption of a different and less costly method of providing the requisite school accommodation. In a good many cases, the subsequent discontinuance of schools which were in operation at the passing of the Act, and were taken into account in the 'opinion and determination' of the school board, necessitated a change of plan—sometimes more than one. Again, in several cases the death or resignation of a member of a school board transformed a majority into a minority, and led to a complete change in the proposals of the board. The consequence was, that much correspondence and protracted negotiations were necessary to settle anew the provision to be made for the education of the parishes concerned.

Causes of Delay in receiving and disposing of School Boards' Proposals.

First, Changes of Proposals.

Digitized by Google

Second, Unsuitable Proposals.

Several instances occurred in which, though the school board adhered to their original opinion and determination, we found, on investigation, that their proposals were crude and defective, sometimes at variance with the provisions of the Act, and framed in the interests of rival teachers rather than in promotion of the permanent educational welfare of the parish. At the same time, it is only fair to mention that, considering the divided state of ecclesiastical opinion in Scotland, school board meetings have not often been converted into an arena for carrying on denominational or sectarian strife.

Third, Local Differences of Opinion.

A frequent cause of difficulty in disposing of the proposals of school boards has been a difference of opinion between a majority and a minority of the members, or between the school board and the ratepayers, respecting the proper sites for the new schools, or the propriety of removing existing schools to what was considered a more convenient and suitable locality. The statements made by the opposing parties were frequently of such a contradictory character, that a visit either from a member of our Board or from one of the Officers of Inquiry was imperatively required before the point at issue could be decided. In most cases these visits have produced beneficial results, and have settled disputes which might have led to a chronic state of hostilities among the members of school boards.

Fourth, Legal Difficulties as to School Sites.

The difficulties of the school boards have in some instances been aggravated by the refusal of proprietors to grant the sites selected by the school board and sanctioned by us. But the Scotch Education Act (unlike the English Act) does not entrust school boards with compulsory powers to obtain possession of a site without the consent of the proprietor, and such powers could be properly exercised only under due control. In other cases a doubt has arisen as to the legal right of a member of a school board to sell to that board a site for a public school under their charge; and several school boards have in consequence been subjected to much inconvenience and trouble.

Fifth, Want of power to compel Combinations of Parishes.

The difficulty of deciding as to the locality in which a school should be placed has been increased when two or more parishes were concerned in the arrangement. School boards have frequently shown greater readiness to avail themselves of the education provided by adjoining parishes, than to assist in supporting schools in which children belonging to their own parish were being educated. As combinations under the Education Act (sec. 42) for the support of joint schools are optional, and as we have no direct power to compel a school board to take part in an arrangement of this kind, we have frequently experienced no small difficulty in inducing school boards to enter into an agreement to provide and maintain schools common to their respective parishes. Still, we have the satisfaction to state that in 84 cases such arrangements have been concluded; and thus the school rate has been rendered less burdensome, and provision has been made in a more convenient and efficient manner than would otherwise have been the case for the education of the children.

Appendix No. II.

Digitized by Google

We regret to state that the power granted to school boards of adjoining parishes by the Education Act (sec. 17), to 'separate and detach' from the parishes under their charge 'such portions as they shall deem it expedient to unite together and form into a school district,' having a separate school board of its own, has been exercised in only two instances. There are many parishes throughout the country, portions of which are separated by long distance, or by lakes, hills, and other barriers, from the main part of the parish, and which could, with great advantage both as regards economy and convenience, be united to detached portions of other parishes similarly situated; but in such cases the Act requires the initiatory steps to be taken by the school boards concerned, who must then obtain the 'consent and approbation of the sheriff of the county.' Experience has proved that school boards can rarely be induced to surrender any assessable area, even for the purpose of promoting the educational interests of the children under their charge.

Sixth, Want of power to compel the formation of School Districts.

At the date of our last Report, we had been able to finally dispose of the reports of 398 school boards, in which provision was made for additional school accommodation for 138,739 scholars. We have now examined and approved of the proposals transmitted to us by 753 school boards, whose reports furnish full information respecting the state of education in their respective parishes or burghs—the number of children of school age—the number of scholars on the rolls of all the schools—the amount of accommodation existing at the passing of the Education Act, classed as good, indifferent, and bad—and the extent to which that accommodation is to be discontinued or superseded. It appears that in 1872 there were in these 753 parishes and burghs 558,258 children between five and thirteen years of age. There were on the roll of all the schools 461,086, including those below five and above thirteen. There were in these parishes and burghs, 2731 good schools, containing accommodation for 370,126 children; 804, providing for 63,923 pupils, were indifferent; and 556, with 30,437 school places, were bad;—in all, 4091 schools, affording accommodation for 464,486 children. Of these buildings, 1450, with 104,269 school places, have, from various causes, been discontinued, or are to be superseded. We have sanctioned the proposals of school boards to provide in their room accommodation for 217,516 scholars, by the erection of 947 new schools, and the enlargement of existing buildings.

Work actually accomplished. 753 proposals of School Boards sanctioned.

State of School accommodation in 1872. Additions now to be made.

The school board of Glasgow, who have by far the greatest task to perform, report that they have ascertained by a careful census that there is in that burgh a deficiency of good school accommodation for 30,000 children. They propose to build thirty schools, to accommodate 22,000 pupils, at an expense of at least a quarter of a million. They have already received the sanction of the Board of Education to erect 23 new schools, to accommodate 17,885 scholars. Nineteen of these schools are estimated to cost £180,000.

New school buildings to be erected in ten Burghs, for 44,273 scholars.

The Edinburgh school board have resolved to build seven new schools, for 4200 children, at an expense of £70,000.

The school board of Dundee have agreed to expend £40,000 in the erection of seven new schools and in the enlargement of an existing building, to provide accommodation for 4000 scholars.

The school board of Govan propose to erect five schools and to enlarge an existing school, for 4513 scholars, at a total cost of £43,000.

Paisley school board have received the sanction of the Board of Education to their 'determination' to erect five new schools and to enlarge an existing school, to accommodate 3890 pupils. Four of these schools and the enlargement are estimated to cost £30,000, exclusive of the generous donation of £4000 from the chairman of the board, to provide additional class rooms not required by the Code.

The school board of Leith have resolved to build six new schools, to accommodate 2800 scholars, at a cost of £35,000.

Kirkcaldy is to expend £10,000 in the erection of two new schools, for 1000 pupils.

Airdrie is to lay out £8850 on two schools, for 800 scholars.

Galashiels and Kilsyth will expend £4000 each in the erection of two schools, to contain 470 and 600 pupils respectively.

In all, these ten school boards have resolved to erect sixty-six new schools and to enlarge existing buildings, to accommodate 44,273 scholars. Fifty-four of these new schools, and three enlargements, are estimated to cost £424,850, being an average rate of £11, 12s. per scholar.

In eight Parishes, for 5534 scholars, at £10, 19s. per head.

The Cambusnethan board, though they enjoy the benefit of several excellent schools erected and supported by the Coltness Iron Company, of which their chairman, Mr. Hunter, is the managing partner, have yet found it necessary to build three new schools and to enlarge a fourth, for 1320 scholars, at an expense in all of £16,000.

St. Ninian's board propose to erect six schools, to cost £8000, and to contain 940 scholars.

Bo'ness is to expend £5000 in building three schools and enlarging others, for 494 children.

Kirriemuir is to lay out the same amount for three schools, to accommodate, with two other joint schools, 555 scholars.

New Deer, which is a purely agricultural parish, proposes to erect three schools, for 414 pupils, at a cost of £3000.

Dryfesdale, which is mostly pastoral, is to expend £3600 on one school, for 600 pupils.

Gairloch, in Ross-shire, a parish 600 square miles in extent, proposes to erect eight new schools and to acquire and enlarge two existing buildings, for 631 scholars, at a cost of £5000.

The school board of the united parish of Dunoon and Kilmun have resolved to build five new schools, for 580 scholars, at an expense of £15,000. In all, thirty-two schools and four additions, to accommodate 5534 children, at a cost of £60,600, or about £10, 19s. per scholar.

In our last Report we stated that serious difficulties had occurred in carrying out the transference of schools as provided by the 38th section of the Act, which authorizes 'the persons vested with the title to any existing school, erected or acquired and maintained for the purpose of promoting education, with the consent of the managers or administrators of the school, to transfer such school, together with the site thereof, and any land or teacher's house held in connection therewith, to the school board of the parish or burgh in which it is situated, to be carried on as a public school under the Act.'

Difficulties in the transference of Schools under 38th Section.

In many instances the managers had incurred a debt (bonâ fide) in the erection or repair of the buildings, or in carrying on the school, and they proposed that this debt, which rarely amounted to more than a hundred or a hundred and fifty pounds, should be liquidated by the school board on their obtaining possession of the school. In other cases it was proposed to transfer the school, without the teacher's house, in order that, by the sale of this building, the debt incurred by the managers might be paid. A school belonging to a congregation is frequently situated in the immediate vicinity of the church and manse, and in such circumstances it was suggested that the school board should come under an obligation not to allow the building to be used for any purpose calculated to destroy the amenity of the adjoining property, or to create a nuisance to the neighbourhood. But in the opinion of eminent counsel who were consulted on the subject, and whose opinion is entitled to special weight, it would be illegal for a school board to pay any such debt, or to give their assent to the stipulation that, in the event of the school and other buildings ceasing to be used by the school board for the purposes of the Act, the property shall revert to the congregation, or that the congregation shall have the right of pre-emption; and farther, that school boards cannot legally come under an obligation, should the buildings be sold, to introduce into the conditions of sale a prohibition against using the buildings transferred as a public house, spirit shop, or brewery, or for any other purpose that might affect the amenity of the adjoining church and manse.

First, From inability to transfer debt.

Second, From inability to restrict subsequent use of transferred buildings.

Opinion of Counsel.

As soon as it became generally known that the debt contracted by the managers of such schools could not be paid by school boards, and that the schools, if discontinued, might be used for purposes which would seriously injure the comfort and amenity of the church and manse, the transfer of denominational and other schools almost entirely ceased. The congregations to which most of these schools belong, though willing and even anxious to make them over to the school boards, were naturally reluctant to do so at the risk of inflicting serious injury on their ecclesiastical property, and have therefore resolved, in the meantime, to retain possession of the buildings, in the hope that the restrictions on their transference to the public will be removed by legislative authority. During the past twelve months only sixty-four schools have been transferred to school boards and become national property. This result is much to be regretted. At the time of the passing of the Education Act, there were in active operation 548 schools in connection with the Free Church. Their cost was estimated at £220,000, of which about £30,000 was contributed by Government. Only 147 of these schools, valued at £50,000, have been transferred to school boards; a large portion of the remaining 401 have been closed or converted to other purposes.

Only 147 Free Church and 80 Established Church Schools as yet transferred to School Boards.

The schools which in 1872 were in the receipt of a grant from the Education Fund of the Established Church at the passing of the Education Act in 1872, were 302 in number; there are now only 120. The number of children attending the schools on the list in 1872 was 25,600; it is now reduced to 9000. Taking into account sessional and all other schools connected in any way with the Established Church at the passing of the Act, their number was estimated at 1250. Of these, 80 have been transferred to School Boards under the provisions of section 38 of the Act.

Consequent alienation of money granted for Educational purposes.

Your Lordships are aware that according to the opinion of counsel, the trustees or managers of a school, erected with the aid of a grant from the Exchequer, cannot be compelled to maintain and carry on the school, or even to repay the grant, unless, with the consent of the Home Secretary, they should sell the building. A large sum of public money has thus been alienated from the object for which it was given; buildings well fitted for educational purposes are now standing empty, or are employed merely as Sabbath schools; and the school boards of the parishes in which these schools are situated may be constrained to make arrangements to erect, at a great expense to the ratepayers, new buildings to supply the place of the discontinued schools. It seems, therefore, desirable that provision should immediately be made to induce and enable the trustees or managers of existing schools to lease or transfer the buildings to the school board.

Loans under 45th Section.

School boards, both burghal and rural, have largely availed themselves of the permission given in the 45th section of the Education Act, to borrow the money required to provide or enlarge school buildings and teachers' houses. During last year, we have sanctioned applications from 349 school boards for loans for these purposes to the amount of £1,109,241. It is evident that the provision in question is most beneficial to school boards, and that unless they had been empowered to 'borrow money on the security of the school fund and the school rate,' the requisite amount of school accommodation could not be provided.

Appendix No. V.

Difficulties owing to the wording of the Section.

A serious practical difficulty, however, has arisen in connection with the borrowing powers of school boards, under the existing provisions of the Act; for the words of the clause in question are held not to cover various important and expensive operations which school boards are obliged to undertake.

Loans for repairs, enclosure and equipment of Schools disallowed.

In numerous cases school boards have come into possession of school buildings in bad repair, and destitute of offices or a supply of water. Such buildings may require to be refloored and plastered, or the roof to be raised or renewed, and in almost all cases new furniture must be provided, involving an outlay of several hundreds of pounds before the buildings can be made suitable and thoroughly efficient. It would be only reasonable that this outlay should be spread over a series of years, as the improvements are really of a permanent nature.

But the Public Works Loan Commissioners hold that they are not entitled to lend money for such operations, as they are not covered by the words 'providing or enlarging' in section 45.

Cases in illustration. First, Kirkcudbright.

The case of Kirkcudbright furnishes an illustration. There, the Academy grounds being unfenced, the school board proposed to erect a wall and railing round the property, at an estimated cost of about £300. The Board of Education gave their consent to a loan for this purpose, but the Public Works Loan Commissioners doubted whether they were entitled to lend the money, or the school board to grant a proper security, and the application of the school board was ultimately refused, as not falling within the terms of the Act.

Second, Perth.

Another instance is supplied by the school board of Perth (Burgh). Under the old system of management, the Academy had fallen into an almost ruinous condition as regarded its internal furniture and fittings. No addition required to be made to the building, but the whole of the interior needed re-arrangement, and extensive repair and improvement. The school board applied for and obtained the consent of the Board to a loan of £1500 to meet the necessary cost, and the loan was granted by the Public Works Commissioners.

Subsequently the school board proposed to borrow a sum of £10,550 to defray the cost of their other operations, which also included two cases of alteration and improvement. In the above amount a further sum of £750 was included to cover the balance of the outlay on the Academy.

Opinion of Solicitor-General on this case.

Appendix No. XXII.

On receiving this second application, the Public Works Commissioners submitted the case to Mr. Watson, the Solicitor-General for Scotland, whose opinion was clear and decided that under the Act a school board was not entitled to borrow money for improvements or alterations of the nature above indicated, the cost of which, he held, must be defrayed out of the rates.

On this opinion the Commissioners acted, and will doubtless continue to act in all similar cases.

The case of the Perth Academy is thus one of peculiar interest, as the result of the Solicitor-General's opinion is such as will practically prevent the outlay upon it from being paid at all, unless payment should be made out of the funds which form the sole income of the teachers. This Academy is one of the higher class schools scheduled in the Act; and, while it is admitted that it is competent to borrow money for providing or enlarging such schools [sec. 62 (6)], the statute prohibits any part of the school fund from being devoted to any other purpose than the repayment of loans for providing or enlarging buildings, and the payment of the cost of the annual examinations. As the proposed expenditure on the Academy is held not to be covered by the borrowing clause (sec.

Digitized by Google

45), it follows that it cannot be paid at all—no part of the rates being available for the purpose.

Hardship inflicted upon parishes by the working of 45th Section.

This case is sufficiently anomalous; but there are others which, if not so singular in their results, present features of real hardship to the ratepayers. In many rural parishes with small rentals, school boards have found it necessary to alter and improve buildings, provide offices, repair teachers' houses, etc.; and it would be both unjust and oppressively burdensome to raise an assessment sufficient to defray the expense of such alterations and improvements. School boards, if they cannot borrow, must either allow the buildings to remain in their present inefficient state, or else build new schools for which they could obtain loans. Both alternatives are to be deprecated as being prejudicial to the interests of the ratepayers, who would thus be compelled either to incur needless expenditure, or to leave their schools in a ruinous condition.

System under English Education Act different in this respect.

Under the English Elementary Education Act, 1873 (36 and 37 Vict. cap. 86, sec. 10), school boards are empowered to borrow for 'any works of improving or fitting-up a school-house which, in the opinion of the Education Department, ought, by reason of the permanent character of such works, to be spread over a term of years.'

A similar provision as regards Scotland would meet the present difficulty.

Duties of Accountant to the Board of Education.

We stated in our first Report, that after various communications with your Lordships and the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, we had appointed, under the authority of the Education Act (sec. 50, 51), Mr. Alexander Bain to the office of Accountant to the Board of Education. On the 11th of February 1874, Mr. Bain entered upon his duties, which he has discharged with exemplary diligence and fidelity. In the course of his examination of the accounts of school board treasurers, he found various charges which he considered extravagant and improper, and in some instances (especially in connection with the school board elections) even contrary to the express provisions of the statute. It therefore became necessary that the extent of the powers of the Accountant and the Board of Education to deal with such charges should be ascertained. Accordingly, having obtained the sanction of your Lordships and of the Lords of the Treasury, we submitted a memorial on the subject to the Lord Advocate and the Solicitor-General. From the answers to the questions which we put to them, it appears that in their opinion the Accountant has no authority under the Act to disallow any expenditure incurred by school boards, no matter how needless, or lavish, or even illegal the charges may be; that his sole statutory duty is to 'cause to be annually prepared an abstract showing the total amount of the receipts and expenditure of each school board, and to transmit the same, with such report as he shall see fit, to the Board of Education;' and that we are authorized by the Act merely to inspect the accounts and vouchers, and the books of the treasurers, and to order any account to be printed at the expense of the school board. A similar opinion has been given by other eminent counsel on a memorial submitted to them by the largest ratepayer in a rural parish, the school board of which had spent, most improperly, as he considered, several hundreds of pounds in an unsuccessful attempt to remove from office the teacher of their public school, and had been condemned by the Sheriff to pay the schoolmaster's expenses as well as their own. In this case counsel held that the ratepayers have no redress for the past, and no security for the future, against a similar expenditure of the funds levied for educational purposes. In these circumstances it is scarcely necessary for us to point out that there is urgent need for instituting an efficient audit of school board accounts, and for entrusting power to some competent authority to disallow all improper and extravagant charges.

Appendix No. XXIII.

Necessity for a more efficient system of Audit.

Burden on Highlands and Islands.

In our previous Report we called attention to the unsuitableness of the provisions of the Education Act to the peculiar condition of the Highlands and Islands, and mentioned a number of cases in which its enactments would impose an overwhelming burden on the ratepayers.

Expense caused by discontinuance of schools.

We regret to say that additional experience has only served to confirm the opinion which we then expressed on this subject. The school accommodation existing in the Highlands and Islands at the time of the passing of the Act was certainly not of a very suitable character, but it was not inferior to the house accommodation of the great mass of the people in these poor and thinly-peopled districts. The first effect of the Act, in not a few of the parishes referred to, was to cause the discontinuance of many of the schools supported by benevolent societies and individuals, and to leave the children in various places without the means of education.

How met in the Lewis.

In the case of the island of Lewis, the inhabitants would have been left in this state but for the liberality of Sir James Matheson, the chief proprietor, who has himself paid a part of the salaries of the teachers in the existing schools, and has promised to continue this payment until the new board schools are erected.

Position of Highland Parishes—such as Gairloch, Applecross, Lochs, South and North Uist.

But very few of the Highland and Island districts are equally fortunate, and a large number of the school boards have hitherto done little or nothing to provide new and adequate school accommodation, simply because they are afraid to encounter the enormous expense which would thus be entailed on the ratepayers. Having regard to the circumstances of the population and the nature of their dwellings, we venture to suggest that the requirements of the Department might well be modified in respect of the plans and specifications for the erection of new buildings in such localities.

We have previously given several examples of the serious difficulties which school boards in the Highlands and Islands have to encounter in carrying into effect the provisions of the Education Act. Gairloch, with an annual valuation of £8535 and a population amounting to 5048, will require ten schools and a half to educate 837 children. The adjoining parish of Applecross, with an annual valuation of £4200 and a population of 2470, must provide eight schools and a half to educate 443 children. Lochs, with an annual valuation of £4506 and a population of 5880, must erect and carry on ten schools for 1541 children; and South Uist, with an annual valuation of £6320 and a population of 5749, must provide twelve schools to educate 1030 children.

In North Uist, which, like most of these parishes, requires to import masons and carpenters as well as materials for building, the expense of erecting four new schools and enlarging three existing schools will amount to £7710. The gross rental of the parish is under £5000. Assuming that the school board will obtain building grants from your Lordships to the extent of nearly three-fourths of the above amount, and that they will borrow the balance, spreading the repayment over fifty years, the annual charge to the parish for interest and repayment alone will require a rate of nearly fivepence per pound on the gross rental.

It must also be kept in view that even then the educational want of this parish will not be fully supplied, as this expenditure is required for the most populous districts alone; and additional provision, involving considerable further outlay, must be made for outlying and sparsely peopled localities.

Assynt. The school board of the parish of Assynt, in the western part of Sutherland, require to provide buildings estimated by their architect to cost £5188,—the gross rental of the parish being £5535. If the Bill now before Parliament becomes law, this school board will be entitled to the same privileges, as regards building grants, accorded to parishes in the favoured counties specified in section 67 of the Act; and in that case, the annual charge for the sum which the school board will of course borrow (repayment being spread over a period of fifty years), would be nearly threepence per pound. If, however, this parish were only to receive building grants according to the scale of the nonfavoured counties (the position which it at present occupies), the annual charge for interest and repayment would not be less than 8½d. per pound.

Delting. The school board of Delting in Shetland have published a statement of the reasons why they cannot, under the Education Act, provide sufficient education for the children of the parish. They allege that 'the low value of property in Delting, the scattered state of the population, on account of which only a small number of scholars can attend any one school, the large proportion of children to the population, together with other causes, render it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to carry out the provisions of the Act.' They require to build at once five schools, for the accommodation of only 174 scholars. The burden of maintaining two denominational schools, which have hitherto been supported by voluntary liberality, will in all probability be thrown upon the school board. They estimate that the annual expense of maintaining and carrying on the five schools which they are about to erect, cannot be less than £490, exclusive of the interest of the money which they must borrow to pay their share of the cost of erecting these buildings. The valued rental of the parish is only £1900 a year. The assessment will, it is calculated, amount to not less than four shillings a pound.

Condition of Orkney and Shetland.

The annual valuation of the Orkney Islands is about £61,000, and there are in these islands 5720 children of school age, while there is good school accommodation for only 1979. In each of two parishes in Orkney, a ninepenny rate yields no more than £41, 15s.; in another parish, £44; and in a fourth, £45; while a shilling rate in several parishes produces only from £85 to £100. In Shetland the state of matters is even worse; for while there are 5689 children of school age to be educated, the annual valuation amounts to only £34,000. The existing public burdens both in Orkney and Shetland are very heavy. In the parish of Dunrossness they amount to 9s., and in the town of Lerwick to 10s. a pound, and we are informed that they cannot be less on the average than 6s. 8d. in the pound. In such circumstances, the additional burden imposed by the school rate will be quite overwhelming.

Increased liberality of Code, 1875.

The liberal grants now made to such parishes under the Revised Code will no doubt greatly lighten the burden of erecting the new schools required to provide accommodation for the children; but still more liberal grants will be necessary to enable school boards to maintain and carry on the very large number of schools which must be maintained in those thinly peopled districts.

Comparison of Highland and Lowland Parishes.

The following table may serve to show the vast difference there must be between Highland and Lowland parishes, as regards the proportion which the number of schools will bear to the total population, to the children of school age, and to the rental:—

In addition to the new schools, there are in the first group of parishes (Highland and Insular) seventeen existing schools which are to be kept up. In the second group (agricultural) there are thirty-two such schools. In the third (mining) there are fifteen, and in the fourth (pastoral) there are thirty-eight. It thus appears that six average Highland and Island parishes, with an annual valuation of only £28,823, must erect thirty-seven schools, and maintain and carry on fifty-four, for the accommodation of 3879 scholars. Twelve agricultural parishes, having an annual valuation of £193,110, require to erect only nine new schools, and to support forty-one. Nine new and fifteen existing schools will suffice for seven mining parishes, with an annual valuation of £132,568; and ten new and thirty-eight existing schools will make sufficient provision for the education of 4153 children in thirteen pastoral parishes in the Lowlands, having an annual valuation of £203,864.

Comparison of Highland and Lowland Parishes.

The school boards in the Highlands and Islands allege that a comparatively small portion of the grants under the Code will fall to their share, owing to the irregularity of attendance on the part of the children, caused by the long distances which they have to travel to school, the inclemency of the climate, and the poverty of the parents.

Difficulty of obtaining Annual Grants in the Highlands and Islands.

We observe, with much satisfaction, that in the Revised Code special concessions have been made in favour of thinly populated districts, which will materially lessen the burden imposed upon them by the Act; and that, in particular, pupil teachers, who have completed their engagement with credit, may, under certain restrictions, be employed to instruct children in districts having a population less than 300. But we greatly fear that, in the remote, thinly peopled, and poor districts of the country, it will be very difficult, if not impossible, to procure the services of such pupil teachers for this purpose. We would therefore respectfully suggest to your Lordships, that the value of the boon in question would be greatly enhanced if it were extended to teachers, approved by H.M. Inspector, who have been in the employment of the Society for the Propagation of Christian Knowledge, the Gaelic School Society, and other similar associations, or to all persons qualified under Article 79 of the Code.

Difficulty of finding Teachers. Concessions of Art. 19 D of Code insufficient.

In the English Education Act provision is made for the resignation of members of school boards; for the removal of members who may refuse to do their duty; and for filling up vacancies caused by death, resignation, disqualification, or otherwise. But the Scotch Education Act contains no express provisions of this kind; and hence great perplexity and inconvenience have arisen, and in several cases serious injury has been inflicted on the educational and pecuniary interests of the parish.

Provisions respecting vacancies in school boards.

At the outset, in two cases, the absence or illness of one of the members elected left an equality of votes in a contest for the office of chairman, so that no appointment could be made, in accordance with the provisions of the Act, at the first meeting of the school board. The legality of the subsequent meeting, and of the election which then took place, was questioned on plausible grounds. In various other cases, the death, disqualification, or resignation of a member of a school board brought matters to a similar dead-lock. In two parishes, where the elections were keenly contested, one of the candidates whom the returning officer declared to have a majority of votes, was unseated by the decision of the Sheriff. The chairman, however, had in both instances been previously elected by the casting vote of the ejected member; and, under the provisions of the Education Act, that election was held valid. In each case two of the remaining members refused to attend a meeting of the school board for the purpose of filling up the vacant seat. The whole operations of the board were in consequence paralysed, as a quorum could not be obtained,—the school rate could not be levied, the public teachers were left without salaries, and no steps could be taken to provide the additional school accommodation urgently needed in both parishes. We made repeated appeals to the refractory members of these two school boards, urging them to do their duty and attend the meetings which their chairman persevered in calling, but without effect. At length, after the delay of several months, it devolved upon us to direct that an appeal should be made a second time to the votes of the ratepayers; and all the expense and turmoil of a contested election were in consequence needlessly incurred.

Twelve months ago, the death of the chairman of the school board of a parish in a northern county left parties equally balanced in numbers, and differing in opinion about the proper site for a new school. They held repeated meetings without any satisfactory result. On one occasion, after a sederunt which lasted four hours, and terminated without any steps having been taken to elect a chairman or to fill the vacant seat on the board, or even to appoint one of their number to preside at that meeting for the imposition of the school rate and the despatch of other business, they agreed to report the circumstances of the case to the Board of Education. But as we have no authority to interfere in such cases, we could do nothing to settle the dispute. As the meeting referred to was held on the last day on which, according to the Education Act, the school rate could be legally imposed, no funds were provided for the payment of the teacher's salary, or to meet the other educational expenses of the parish.

Similar cases may occur at any moment. A few weeks ago, a school board in Orkney having lost their chairman by death, met for the purpose of electing a successor, imposing the annual assessment for the support of the schools, and the discharge of other necessary business. But as two of the members voted for one candidate, and the other two were in favour of another, and neither party would yield, the meeting broke up without having transacted any business; and as no rate can now be legally imposed, the teachers must be left without salaries during the current year. Both parties have appealed to us for redress, but to both we have been obliged to return the answer that under the provisions of the Act we have no authority to interfere in the matter.

The Education Act (sec. 55) provides that parochial teachers who were in office previously to the passing of the Education Act 'shall not, with respect to tenure of office or retiring allowance as by law, contract, or usage secured to or enjoyed by them at the passing of the Act, be prejudiced by any of the provisions herein contained.' In regard, however, to many other important points, the Act has not defined the mutual rights and duties of school boards and teachers, and has not invested anybody with controlling or superintending authority to ensure the smooth working of the Act, or to settle differences of opinion between school boards and teachers respecting the management of the schools under their charge. It is no matter of surprise, therefore, that disputes have arisen between the two parties, not unfrequently about matters of comparatively small importance in themselves, but which in various instances have led to protracted and costly litigation,—as, for example, whether the teacher is under legal obligation to collect the school fees, with or without remuneration for his trouble, if asked to do so by the school board—whether he is bound to fill up the necessary schedules and to prepare his pupils for examination by one of H.M. Inspectors with a view to a grant, even though his school board should refuse to give him any share, or what he may consider an inadequate portion, of the public money earned by his labours—whether a member of a school board is entitled at his pleasure to visit the public school and to watch and find fault with the conduct of the teacher in instructing his pupils—whether a committee of the school board appointed for the purpose have a right to visit the school and to examine the scholars—whether a school board have the power to compel a teacher accustomed before the passing of the Act to give instruction only in the higher branches of education, to devote his attention in future mainly, if not exclusively, to the teaching of the elementary branches. These and other similar questions, which could have been settled either by the Department or the Board of Education with comparatively little trouble and no expense, have caused no small contention between a number of school boards and teachers, which has been exceedingly prejudicial to the educational interests of the parishes concerned. Most of these cases have ultimately been appealed to the Court of Session, where they have been decided at considerable cost to all parties concerned.

Provisions respecting Teachers' rights.

Differences between school boards and Teachers.

The most important of these cases is the suit which was instituted a few months ago by the school board of Kelso against their teacher, who had refused to admit two members of the board commissioned to make a surprise visit to his school. The board presented a petition to the Sheriff to 'interdict and prevent' the teacher 'from excluding and preventing the school board from entering the public school during school hours, whenever and so often as they may deem necessary, in the discharge of their duties under the Act of Parliament.' They alleged that the teacher, by refusing them admission to the school, had not only obstructed and hindered them from efficiently and properly discharging their duties under the Act, but had injuriously affected the educational interests of the parish. The teacher, on the other hand, pleaded that there was no authority in the Education Act or in the Scottish Code empowering a school board to make visits of surprise, or to interfere with a schoolmaster appointed to a public school prior to the passing of the Act, otherwise than as directed by that Act. The Sheriff-Substitute before whom the case was first tried granted the petition of the school board, but his decision was reversed by the Sheriff-Depute. An appeal was taken to the Court of Session, the First Division of which sustained the decision of the Sheriff, and dismissed the petition. The Lord President, in delivering the judgment of the Court, stated that he could not find in the Act any authority entitling school boards to send any of their number at any time, and without notice, for the purpose of inspecting the schools of the board. School boards were not elected to perform such a duty, which properly belonged not to them, but to Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. The main purpose for which school boards were constituted was to provide the requisite school accommodation for the children, and to look after the rights and interests of the ratepayers. In the discharge of these duties, the members were entitled to enter the schools for the purpose of inspecting and keeping in repair the buildings, but not to interfere with the teachers.

This decision has excited great uneasiness among the school boards throughout the country, who seem to be of opinion that it will seriously hinder the performance of their statutory duties.

Removal of Teachers under Section 60 [2].

Appendix No. VI.

Since the date of our last Report (sec. 60 [2]), eight school boards have taken advantage of the provisions of the Education Act for the removal of teachers from office, and after requiring and receiving 'a special report regarding the school and the teacher from Her Majesty's Inspector charged with the duty of inspecting such school,' have proceeded to give judgment, removing the teacher from office as 'incompetent, unfit, and inefficient,' and have applied to us to confirm such judgment. In three of these cases, after a careful consideration of the charges adduced by the school boards, and the evidence on which these charges were founded, together with the statements made by the teachers in their own defence, we felt it our duty to confirm the sentence of the school boards. One of these applications was withdrawn on the resignation of the teacher. In another case we have declined to approve of the proposed dismissal of the schoolmaster; and there are certain peculiarities in the three remaining cases which have made it necessary for us to delay our decision regarding them. One of the teachers who has been removed from office, has raised an action before the Court of Session against his school board, for the purpose of getting his sentence of dismissal reduced and declared null and void, on the alleged ground that the report of the Inspector upon which it proceeded was not a proper report in terms of the Education Act, that no proper copy of said report was furnished to the teacher, and that said judgment was malicious and unjust on the part of the school board, and proceeded on a report which was in itself unjust, and had been maliciously and unjustly obtained by the school board. Our Board having been included in the summons, and cited as parties to the action, we, with the sanction of your Lordships and of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, have engaged counsel to appear on our behalf, and to vindicate the course which we have followed in dealing with this case.

1. Case of Haddington.

Three of the eight teachers whose removal from office was mentioned in our last Report, and a fourth who was dismissed on the 24th of July 1874, have appealed to the Court of Session against the judgment of their respective school boards. One of the four was rector of the Burgh School of Haddington, and, founding on a peculiarity in the constitution of that school, he resisted the attempt of the school board to remove him from the teacher's house, though they had granted him a retiring allowance of £40 a year. But the Court regarded his plea as invalid, and decided against him. The other three acquiesced in their removal from office, but insisted that they had a right to the statutory retiring allowance, which had been refused them by their school boards. In the first of the cases brought before the Court (Little v. the School Board of Whitburn), the Judge was of opinion that he was entitled to look into the grounds of the teacher's dismissal; and, after examining the evidence adduced to prove him 'incompetent, unfit, and inefficient,' his Lordship came to the conclusion that the inefficiency of the schoolmaster proceeded from a want of natural ability rather than from any fault of his own, and decided that the school board should pay him his legal retiring allowance. The school board acquiesced in this judgment.

2. Case of Logiealmond.

In the second case (Robb v. the School Board of Logiealmond), the Lord Ordinary decided against the teacher's claim, on the ground that a teacher removed from office as 'incompetent, unfit, and inefficient,' has no legal right to a retiring allowance. The Act of 1872, he affirmed, gives no larger powers to school boards to grant, and no larger rights to teachers to demand, pensions, than were conferred on heritors and schoolmasters respectively by the Act of 1861. That Act authorized the heritors to remove and give pensions to teachers who were 'disqualified because of infirmity or old age' for the due performance of the duties of their office; but it authorized removal with a pension in no other case whatsoever. Removal without a pension was authorized in the case of a teacher who 'from negligence or inattention has failed efficiently to discharge such duties.' His Lordship also refused to require the school board to prove before the Court the faults on the ground of which they had removed the teacher from office. To do so, he said, would be contrary to the intention of the Act, and detrimental to the public interest. The case was appealed to the Inner House; and the Lord President, in delivering the judgment of the Court, directly contravened these opinions as to the interpretation of the statute. The Lord Ordinary, he said, had omitted to notice that the Education Act of 1872 was a remedial measure, and should therefore be interpreted in a beneficial and favourable manner. As the causes of dismissal were multiplied under the Act, and the liability to dismissal extended, so there ought to be a corresponding extension of the grounds on which a retiring allowance might be granted. If a dismissed teacher were without fault, he had a right to demand a pension; if he were in fault, the school board had still power to grant him a retiring allowance. As the school board had not specified the causes of their decision, the Court ordered them to 'reconsider their resolution refusing the teacher a retiring allowance, and if they should adhere thereto, to specify in their resolution the ground of such refusal.' In obedience to this injunction, the school board did accordingly reconsider their decision, but unanimously resolved to adhere to it, and specified the teacher's inefficiency as the ground of their refusal,—'that inefficiency being occasioned by his extreme indolence, culpable neglect of his duties as a teacher, and general misconduct, as proved by the complete absence of scholars, and substantiated by the evidence of the inhabitants of the district.' The Court being satisfied that these statements were true, dismissed the action, and sustained the proceedings of the school board.

Digitized by Google

3. Case of Glenshiel.

The third case was a suit by James Morison, parochial schoolmaster of Glenshiel, against the school board of that parish, who had dismissed him from office on the ground that he is 'incompetent, unfit, and inefficient,' the result of his intemperate habits, neglect, and frequent absence from his duties as a teacher, aggravated by his insolvency, and the fact that he is owing a considerable balance to the parochial board of his parish, in which he was collector of poor rates. The Lord Ordinary decided against the teacher's claim for a retiring allowance, on grounds similar to those set forth in the Logiealmond case. On an appeal to the Second Division of the Court of Session, the decision of the Lord Ordinary was unanimously sustained, but for reasons quite different from those which had formed the grounds of the judgment of the First Division in the Logiealmond case,—their Lordships holding that the decision of a school board as to the dismissal of a teacher is not subject to review, unless there should appear to be oppression or evasion of the statute on the part of the board. In this state of uncertainty as to the law, and the difference of opinion between the two Divisions of the Court of Session as to the interpretation of the statute, there is every probability that there will be further litigation in regard to the question of a retiring allowance to teachers removed from office for fault, unless all doubts on the subject are set at rest by the interposition of the Legislature.

Compulsory Education.

There are two great principles on which the Education (Scotland) Act is founded, viz. that efficient and suitable education must be provided for every child of school age in the country, and that every child is bound to take advantage of the education thus provided. The principle embodied in the compulsory clauses of the Education Act is not new in Scotland. As early as the year 1494, it was enacted by the Estates, that, throughout the realm, all barons and freeholders 'that are of substance should put their eldest sons and heirs to the schools fra they be six or nine years of age, and to remain at the grammar schools until they be competently founded and have perfect Latin, and thereafter to remain three years at the schools of art and jure (law), so that they have knowledge and understanding of the laws . . . . ; and what baron or freeholder of substance that holds not his son at the schools, having no lawful excuse, he shall pay to the King the sum of twenty pounds.' At a later period, the Church Courts appear to have specially charged themselves with the duty of compelling parents, of whatever rank, to bring up their children in learning and virtue; and these efforts were to a certain extent successful in attaining the end in view. Down to a very recent period, in the rural parishes throughout the Lowlands, scarcely a single individual of mature age could be found who was unable to read. The altered state of matters in the large towns, and in the mining and manufacturing districts of the country, to a great extent brought about by the influx of many thousands of Irish, has rendered absolutely necessary the enactment of stringent compulsory provisions to secure the education of the youth of the country.

Old Enactments.

On this point, all parties, political and ecclesiastical, in Scotland, are at one; for experience has demonstrated that, while sober and decent parents, no matter how poor they may be, will make almost any sacrifice to obtain for their children the blessings of education, the ignorant and careless, and especially dissipated parents, cannot be induced by any amount of moral suasion, to send their children to school; and that greed of the pence which their wretched offspring might pick up by running messages, or even by begging or stealing, is a sufficient motive to induce them to refuse education even when offered gratuitously. The Education Act deals with such parents in a most stringent and effectual manner, by inflicting on them fines and imprisonment if they neglect to send their children to school. It holds the employers of untaught children of school age responsible for their education; and, to remove any valid excuse for neglect of this duty, it makes provision for the payment of the school fees of those children whose parents are unable through poverty to meet the expense of their education.

Present state of feeling on this subject.

The practical effect of these compulsory enactments has fully vindicated their propriety and necessity. It is, of course, mainly in the large towns and in the mining and manufacturing districts that compulsory measures are required to secure regularity of attendance; and it is in such places that the effect of these proceedings has been most conspicuous.

Effect of compulsory powers.

When the school board of Glasgow entered upon their duties, they instituted a careful educational inquiry, taking the registration districts of the city in order one by one. Their investigations, up to the present date, have extended over eleven districts, in which they have found 16,232 children of school age 'not at school.' The board lost no time in employing energetic measures to bring these children under instruction. First of all, the officers visit every family in these districts, and remonstrate with the parents who were neglecting their duty to their children. Then a printed form of notice and warning is sent to those who are still in default. A meeting of the board is next held in the district, before which defaulting parents are summoned to appear, and their excuses are heard. Prosecutions have only been instituted in a few cases against some parents who still neglected or obstinately refused to send their children to school. Out of 14,174 defaulting children in ten districts (the inquiry in the eleventh district having been only just completed and no visitations of remonstrance made by the officers), 5846 were sent to school in consequence of remonstrance or warning by officers, 3103 after service of the notice form, 711 after the meeting of parents with board, and 47, in three of the ten districts, after prosecution; leaving only 1266 out of the 14,174 still to be dealt with.

In Edinburgh.

In the City of Edinburgh, the school board at the date of their census found 22,489 children attending school. There are now 26,069. After allowing for the natural increase of the population, the increased attendance must be attributed mainly if not exclusively to the operations of the school board. Of defaulting children,* 5174 were sent to school in consequence of the officer's visits, 1458 were sent after their parents had been served with notices, 320 after their parents had been summoned before the school board, and 22 after their parents had been prosecuted.

In Dundee.

In Dundee, 1175 warning notices were issued to parents during the year 1874, with the result of securing the attendance of 1007 children who previously were not receiving instruction; 128 parents were summoned before the school board, and 161 children were in consequence sent to school. Seven parents were prosecuted and convicted.

In Govan.

In the burgh and parish of Govan, closely adjoining, or rather forming a portion of Glasgow, and possessing a very large working class population, the number of children on the roll of all the schools of every class in 1873 amounted to 7198, the number in May 1874 had risen to 9438; it has now been increased to 10,349, a result due mainly, if not entirely, to the active efforts of the school board. When the first school census was taken two years ago, there were in the parish 2640 children of school age not under instruction. In the course of a year, through the influence of visits from the officers, the issuing of notices and of summonses to appear before the school board (without resorting to prosecution), 1989 of these neglected children were sent to school, and the number of defaulters reduced to 751, little more than a fourth of the original number. After an interval of five or six months, notices were again served on 384 parents, representing 510 children, of whom 273 were in consequence sent to school, leaving only 237 to be dealt with as defaulters. Between December 1873 and May 1875, 1785 notices were served upon parents representing 2489 children, and between February 1874 and May 1875 there were summoned before the school board 381 parents and guardians, representing 601 children, nearly all of whom have now been sent to school, though the attendance of a number of them is irregular, mainly in consequence of the want of adequate clothing.

In Greenock.

In the burgh of Greenock there were, in June 1873, when the educational census was taken, 2776 children of school age who were not receiving instruction. Of that number, 1866 have been dealt with successfully and sent to school,—1148 through the visits and persuasion of the officers of the school board, 470 after a formal printed notice from the board had been served on the parents, 223 after their parents had been summoned to appear before a committee of the school board, and 25 after their parents had been prosecuted before the Sheriff. Of the remaining 910, 213 were above thirteen years of age before the compulsory provisions of the Act could be brought into operation by the school board, 73 have left the town, 53 are unable to attend school owing to blindness, deafness, and other permanent infirmities, 10 have died since 1873, and the remaining 564 (most of them below eight years of age) have still to be dealt with.

When the census was taken in June 1873, there was in Greenock school accommodation for 8473 scholars. There were on the roll of all the schools of every kind 8277, of whom 6407 were in regular attendance. At 31st May 1875, school accommodation had been provided for 8828 children, though none of the new schools erected by the board are yet opened; the number of pupils on the roll had increased to 9162, and the attendance to 7438. At the date of the census, the percentage of absentees or truants was 22·7 per cent. At 31st May 1875, it had decreased to less than 19 per cent., and this, notwithstanding that by far the greater portion of the children who have been induced to attend school through the exertions of the school board belong to the lowest class, and are extremely irregular in their habits.

Altogether, 331 parents or guardians have been summoned to appear before this school board, but a considerable number of them have been summoned oftener than once; 34 have been prosecuted before the Sheriff.

Similar results have been reported by the school boards of the other large towns of Scotland.

Effect of compulsory proceedings in rural districts.

The influence of the compulsory provisions of the Act, in increasing school attendance throughout the rural districts of the country, has been equally beneficial. In most instances the mere intimation that the powers entrusted to the school boards would, if necessary, be exercised, has been sufficient to gain the desired end, and in comparatively few cases have country boards been constrained to prosecute careless and negligent parents before the Sheriff.

From the tables in the Appendix, it will be seen that the total number of prosecutions in all Scotland during the year 1874 was 156, viz., 155 parents and 1 employer. Convictions were obtained in 110 of these cases, and the total cost of the prosecutions, so far as rendered and paid, amounted to £259, 9s. 1½d., being an average of nearly £1, 13s. 4d. for each case.

The number of parents who applied to Parochial Boards in terms of section 69 for assistance to educate their children is returned at 3139, and it appears that of that number 2088 applications were granted and 1051 refused.

Difficulties between school boards and parochial boards.

On the whole, it would appear that parochial boards have exercised a sound discretion in dealing with these applications. In some instances, however, school boards report that difficulties have arisen from the action of the parochial boards in refusing payment in whole or in part of school fees; and in the returns made to us, several instances are given where parochial boards have refused to pay school fees for any children but those whose parents are in receipt of parochial relief. In one case, viz. that of the Burgh of Leith, the school board report that the parochial board of South Leith, having a school under their management at which pauper children are educated, decline to pay school fees under section 69, offering instead free education at their own school, in which, however, although religious instruction is given according to use and wont, there is no time-table as provided by the conscience clause (sec. 68).

It may be premature to express any decided opinion on the questions thus presented, but it is evident that they indicate the point where any real difficulty in the working of the compulsory clauses will arise. As the Act stands, parochial boards are the sole judges of the parent's claim to assistance in the payment of school fees, and no provision exists whereby their decisions can be altered or reviewed. The returns, however, show that the full effect of the compulsory clauses of the Act and their mode of operation cannot be realized until adequate and efficient school accommodation has been everywhere provided.

Appendix No. VII.

It is proper to add that in most cases school boards have shown great discretion and forbearance in the employment of their compulsory powers. In various instances in which our advice has been asked as to the application of these powers to very poor parents, and especially to widows, who cannot without great difficulty and privation dispense with the services of their children, we have recommended that the compulsory provisions of the Act should not be enforced in a harsh or vexatious manner, and we have every reason to believe that our advice has been followed.

We beg again to call the attention of your Lordships to the complaints made by school boards respecting the expense of prosecuting defaulters under the Act, and to repeat the suggestion contained in our last report—that the failure to send a child to school without a valid excuse should be summarily dealt with in the Police Courts in burghs, and in counties in the Justice of Peace Courts, which could be done at a trifling cost.

Education of Children working in Factories.

We have received from school boards, in several parts of the country, representations of the difficulties which they have experienced in securing the efficient education of young persons employed in factories, whose parents or guardians claim exemption from the compulsory provisions of 'the Education (Scotland) Act,' on the plea that the education of their children is regulated by and carried on under the provisions of the Factories Acts; and this Board has been asked to advise the school boards on several points of their administration under the statute which they were specially appointed to carry into effect.

Digitized by Google

As this is a matter of considerable importance, the relative provisions of the Education Act and of the Factories Acts may be briefly referred to.

The Education Act, 1872, enacts, section 69, 'It shall be the duty of every parent to provide elementary education in reading, writing, and arithmetic for his children between 5 and 13 years of age.'

Provisions of the Education Act on this subject.

Section 70.—'It shall be the duty of every school board to appoint an officer to ascertain and report to the school board what parents resident within the parish or burgh have failed and omitted, and are failing and omitting, to perform the duty of providing for their children such elementary education as aforesaid;' and after prescribing the steps to be taken with a view to prosecution for neglect of such duty, it provides that, on conviction, every such 'parent shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 20s., or to imprisonment not exceeding 14 days, and such proceedings as aforesaid may be repeated against the same parent, and in respect of a continuance of the same failure of duty, at intervals of not less than three months.'

By section 72—'Any person' 'who employs' 'a child under the age of 13, who has not attended school regularly for at least three years, between the ages of 5 and 13, and is unable to read and write, and who continues such child in his employment after notice from the school board of the parish or burgh, or an officer thereof, that he has not received elementary education, shall be deemed thereby to undertake the duty of a parent with respect to the elementary education of such child so long as he remains in his employment, and shall be liable to be proceeded against, and to be fined or imprisoned as hereinbefore provided in the case of a parent, should he grossly and without reasonable excuse fail to perform such duty; but the duty of the parent shall not thereby be discharged or diminished, nor shall the parent be thereby exempted from liability to be proceeded against as aforesaid.

Section 73.—'A certificate of ability to read and write, and of a knowledge of elementary arithmetic, granted in favour of any child by one of Her Majesty's Inspectors, shall exempt the parent and all employers of such child from any prosecution or other proceeding under this Act for neglecting to provide for the education of such child.'

It will be observed that these provisions do not afford ground for the belief entertained by some that a child is only required to be able to read and write to entitle him to claim exemption from compulsory attendance at school upon going to work, but, on the contrary, show clearly, that although a person employing a child between the ages of 5 and 13 who is able to read and write may not be held thereby to undertake the duty of a parent with respect to the elementary education of such child, nor be liable to be fined or imprisoned for neglect, yet the duty of the parent to provide elementary education in reading, writing, and arithmetic is not thereby discharged or diminished, but he remains liable to prosecution and punishment should he fail to provide for the elementary education of the child in each and all of these three branches. The certificate mentioned in the 73d section is the only means by which parents and employers alike can secure exemption from responsibility for the further education of children so far as the provisions of the Education Act are concerned.

Provisions of the Factory Acts.

These provisions, however, are affected by the enactments of the Factories Acts. The 37th and 38th Victoria, cap. 44, is entitled, 'An Act to make better provision for improving the health of women, young persons, and children employed in manufactures, and the education of such children, and otherwise to amend the Factory Acts.'

Section 6 of this Act is as follows: 'In a factory, to which this Act applies, the children may be employed either in morning and afternoon sets, or for the whole day, or alternate days, and the following regulations shall be observed:—

'(1.) Where the children are employed in morning and afternoon sets—

'(c.) A child employed in the factory shall attend school in manner directed by section 38 of the Factory Act, 1844; and the provisions of that Act with respect to such attendance and certificates thereof shall apply accordingly; and

'(2.) Where the children are employed on alternate days.

'(c.) A child employed in the factory shall attend school in manner directed by section 31 of the Factory Act, 1844; and the provisions of that Act with respect to such attendance and certificates thereof shall apply accordingly.'

Now the 38th and 31st sections of the Factory Act, 1844, being the 7th and 8th Victoria, cap. 15, are as follows:—

Section 38.—'That, save as hereinotherwise provided, the parent or person having any direct benefit from the wages of any child employed in a factory shall cause such child to attend some school on the day after the first employment of such child, and thenceforth on each working day of every week, during any part of which the said child shall continue in such employment, so that on every such day, except in the cases hereinafter provided, such child shall attend school during at least three hours after the hour of eight of the clock in the morning, and before the hour of six of the clock in the evening. Provided always, that any child attending school after one of the clock in the afternoon shall not be required to remain in the school more than two hours and a half on any one day between the first day of November and the last day of February, and no child shall be required to attend school on any Saturday.'

Section 31.—'The parent or person having direct benefit from the wages of any child so employed shall cause such child to attend some school for at least five hours, between the hours of eight of the clock in the morning and six of the clock in the afternoon of the same day, on each week day preceding each day of employment in the factory, unless such preceding day shall be a Saturday, when no school attendance of such child shall be required.'

In the manufacturing districts, the above provisions of the Act of 1844 have led to the employment of a large number of children in factories as half-time workers. It may be possible to adduce instances in which the children so employed have received an efficient education; but in Scotland the result on the whole has been very unsatisfactory. One of the school boards referred to have found on examination that a great proportion of these half-timers are so ignorant that, if they continue to attend school only for one-half of the day, they would be very imperfectly educated when they attain 13 years, and quite unable to pass a satisfactory examination in the standard which would be usually applied to pupils of that age.

The same school board refers as an example to a boy of 12 years of age, who could not read a simple passage, who could not write, and had no knowledge of arithmetic.

Cases referred by school boards for advice.

The form in which these matters were brought under the notice of the Board of Education may be illustrated by citing the following from the communications of the school boards of Dundee, Selkirk, and Monifieth, as examples of the questions on which we were requested to give an opinion and advice.

First, Case of Dundee.

Dundee.—'Is the board entitled to refuse to take in half-time children if the effect of their reception would be to disarrange the classes in the public schools, and prevent the efficient discharge of the duties of the teachers, and the efficient management and administration of the school? Is the school board entitled to establish and maintain schools for half-timers only; and in the event of their doing so, may they charge against employers or others interested higher rates of school fees than the rates at other public schools, so as to recoup the capital expended in the construction of the schools?'

Second, Case of Selkirk.

Selkirk.—After an explanatory statement of the results of an examination of half-timers, the clerk of the school board adds:—'In such a case as this, or even where the ignorance was not so marked, my board would be glad to be advised whether, in the opinion of the Board of Education, the provisions of the Education Act can be enforced so as to compel the regular attendance of such a child, notwithstanding the provisions of the half-time Factory Act.'

Third, Case of Monifieth.

Monifieth.—After pointing out various objections to the attendance of half-timers in the public schools, and putting some questions relating thereto, states:—The half-time attendance is not securing sufficient education, and if the school board have it in their power, it is their intention to compel full attendance, and you will please advise whether, in the case of any half-timer approaching the age of 13, and proved by examination to be insufficiently educated, it is the duty of the school board to insist for full attendance, so as thereby to secure education to him up to the point referred to in the 73d section of the Education Act.'

Digitized by Google

From the nature of these inquiries, it will readily be seen that the school boards were anxious to secure the efficient education of the whole of the population under their charge, and that their chief difficulty as regarded the half-timers consisted in the apparent conflict between the express requirements of the Education Act, which the school boards were constituted to administer, and the provisions of the Factory Acts, sanctioning an irregular or incomplete attendance during the usual school hours, and thus leaving many children at 13 years of age without that measure of instruction which the Education Act was expected and intended to provide for them.

The Board remitted the whole of these important communications in the first instance to one member who had made this question his special study; and he, after careful investigation of the various provisions of the several statutes, submitted a report which embodied a draft of the reply which should be sent to each school board.

Advice given by the Board of Education.

This report, after due consideration, was approved. It is needless to give the replies in detail; suffice it to state generally, that the school boards were informed that, in the opinion of the Board of Education, the provisions of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872, cannot be held to supersede the express provisions relative to the education of children employed in factories which the Legislature has seen fit to insert in the Factory Acts of 1844 and 1874.

That a school board would not be justified in refusing to educate half-timers in a public school, in which there was adequate accommodation for their reception; that the school fees for half-time children should not be fixed according to any other rule than that adopted in determining the fees to be charged for other children in the same class of schools under their management; and that it does not appear that school boards should fix the school fees so as to recoup the capital expended in the construction of schools.

One of the school boards, declining to follow the advice thus given, instituted an action before the Sheriff against the parents of certain half-timers, in which they failed; and, on an appeal to the Court of Session, the decision of the Sheriff was confirmed.

In these as in all similar cases of inquiry, when asked for an opinion or advice, opportunity was taken to explain that the Board of Education have no authority to construe the statute, nor to give definite legal advice; but our views were stated for consideration, and in many cases, although not authoritative, they have served the purpose for which they were expressed.

The Factory Act of 1874 provides, that after the expiry of the present year, children under 10 years of age shall not be employed in a factory to which the Act applies, and that a person of the age of 13 and under 14 years shall be deemed to be a child so as to come within the educational provisions of the Act unless he has obtained a certificate of having attained such standard of proficiency in reading, writing, and arithmetic as may be from time to time prescribed.

Working of the half-time system.

These provisions may hereafter tend to mitigate the educational disadvantages which have hitherto characterized the half-time system; but it is not to be expected that they will prove to be an effectual remedy. Indifference and neglect to secure the early instruction of their children are in too many cases caused by the parents being themselves illiterate, and therefore unable to appreciate the advantage even in a pecuniary sense which education confers on the young. Such parents too frequently allow their children to grow up in ignorance, without ever sending them to school, although they are aware that when a child obtains employment in a factory, he is under the necessity of going through the form of attending school, in terms of the provisions of the Factory Acts. It also often happens that the circumstances of the parents are such as to lead them to regard the weekly earnings of the child as an important if not necessary part of the income of the family. We would much regret to suggest anything which could possibly in any way injuriously affect the condition of the poor or those who live by manual labour, but considering how very much the employed and the employers alike would benefit by the higher intelligence of the labouring class, which would be the certain result of the efficient education of the whole population, we respectfully submit, in the interest of all classes of the community, that the Legislature would confer a great benefit on the country by providing that, after say three years from this date, no persons under 14 years of age shall be employed either in factories or otherwise, or allowed to earn wages in any form, until they have obtained a certificate that they have passed a satisfactory examination in, at least, the fifth standard of the Scottish Code. Were some such provision made part of our statute law, parents, so far from having any reason for delaying the early education of their children, would have a pecuniary interest in accelerating their progress at school, which could not fail to produce very beneficial results.

Suggestions for its improvement.

In the performance of the duties which Her Majesty was graciously pleased to entrust to us under the statute, no subject has been the cause of greater solicitude than the future of the higher education in Scotland.

Higher education in Scotland.

By the 67th section of the Education Act, it is provided that in the construction of the minutes which shall regulate the distribution of the parliamentary grants, due care shall be taken by the Scottish Education Department that the standard of education shall not be lowered; but, notwithstanding the anxiety which has been felt to avert such a result, we have received numerous complaints from teachers and others interested in the cause of education, that the effect of the present system is to induce attention more exclusively to the merely elementary branches,—reading, writing, and arithmetic,—and thereby to lower the standard which has been heretofore maintained in the best class of Scottish parish schools.

Terms of 67th Section of the Act.

Without admitting the accuracy of the statements or representations on which these complaints have frequently been based, we cannot fail to recognise that there is a risk that the educational minimum which the Legislature has prescribed as the test by which a child shall be judged before he is entitled to go to work, may come to be regarded as the maximum which parents should strive to provide for their children. We would deeply regret that any such feeling should come to pervade the people of Scotland.

Want of provision for higher instruction.

The founders of our ancient parochial school system, doubtless designed that instruction in the higher branches of learning should be placed within reach of the young in every parish and burgh in Scotland, though, unhappily, no adequate provision was ever made by Parliament for carrying out that desirable object.

The only funds which are at present expressly applicable to the support of higher class public schools, are defined by the 62nd section (sub-section 3) of the Act to be—'1. Contributions payable from the common good of the burghs in which they respectively exist. 2. All endowments applicable to the general purposes of the respective schools. 3. Endowments for the promotion of instruction in particular subjects, or for the benefit of teachers of particular branches, in the respective schools. And 4. Fees paid by scholars.'

Where high fees are charged, the parents of the humbler class of the population are unable to meet the expense of educating their children in such schools; but Higher class Public Schools disabled by lack of funds.

As will be seen below, the fees paid by scholars in the existing higher class public schools form by far the greater part of the revenue by which they are maintained; and the contributions and endowments are so small in amount, that the school boards which have the management of the schools specified in the schedule annexed to the Act, must experience much difficulty in maintaining these institutions in a state of efficiency; while the same lack of funds must put it out of their power to carry out the desire of the Legislature (as expressed, section 62, sub-section 4) to relieve such schools of the necessity of giving elementary instruction to young children in reading, writing, and arithmetic.

We cannot but express the hope that this deficiency of funds may ere long be supplied, either by the application to this purpose of a part of the existing unappropriated educational endowments or otherwise, as to Parliament may seem best.

Higher instruction must be continued in ordinary Public Schools.

In present circumstances, it is not to be expected that the number and efficiency of higher class public schools can be increased to an extent commensurate with the wants of the country; and we therefore deem it of much importance that in the election of teachers school boards generally should endeavour to secure the services of men whose acquirements are such as to qualify them to give elementary instruction in Mathematics, Latin, Greek, and other branches; as it is only in this way that we can hope to place instruction in these higher branches of knowledge within reach of the whole population, and thereby secure the advancement of promising scholars of all classes, and maintain and elevate the Scottish standard of education.

Returns from the higher class Public Schools.

In accordance with section 74 of the Act, the Board of Education have required and received reports and returns from school boards relative to the 11 higher class public schools specified in Schedule C* and to the Irvine and Leith Academies, which in terms of section 62 of the Act have been raised into higher class schools. The returns are tabulated in Appendix No. VIII.

It will be seen that the following is the number of scholars returned as attending these schools:— Appendixes Nos. VIII. and IX.

	On the Roll at the end of 1874.	Average Attendance during the year.
Aberdeen New Grammar School,	208	211
Ayr Academy,	420	354
Dumfries Academy,	216	210
Edinburgh High School,	336	299
Elgin Academy,	175	170
Glasgow High School,	644	540
Irvine Academy,	94	94
Leith Academy,	105	98
Montrose Academy,	325	309
Paisley Grammar School and Academy,	237	226
Perth Academy,	281	280
Stirling High School,	302	Not known.

Thus the total number of scholars on the roll of the higher class public schools of Scotland, at the end of 1874, was 3343. Excluding Stirling High School (the managers of which have failed to return the average attendance for the year), in the remaining 11 schools the average attendance has been 2791, giving a percentage of 91 on the number on the rolls. Attendance of scholars.

The following has been the total revenue of these schools during the year from fees, common good, and endowments:—

Aberdeen New Grammar School,	£1680	15	8
Ayr Academy,	2512	11	5
Dumfries Academy,	994	16	10
Edinburgh High School,	4678	17	0
Elgin Academy,	639	5	6

Paisley Grammar School,	629	14	8
Perth Academy,	1419	1	11
Stirling High School,	1283	17	10
	£22,432	15	3

Of this amount, the sum derived from common good, endowments, and all sources except fees, appears to be only £980, Revenues of Higher Class public Schools.

17s. 10d.,—that is, little more than one-sixth. Almost five-sixths of the revenues of the higher class public schools are derived from fees; and these schools are thus virtually self-supporting. They are destitute of anything like adequate endowments, and are only entitled under the Act to receive from rates (1) the expenses of the annual examinations [sec. 62 (6)], (2) the cost of 'providing or enlarging' school buildings (sec. 36). Repairs or alterations of existing higher class school buildings, it is understood, are not allowed to be paid for out of the school fund of the burgh. At the same time, traditional usage has caused very moderate fees to be imposed. The scale, however, differs considerably in the different schools. Taking the total amount of fees collected during the year in each school, and dividing it by the number of scholars on the roll, we get the following rates per head actually paid:—

Fees per Scholar per annum.

In Edinburgh High School,	£11	0	0
Glasgow High School,	8	12	7
Ayr Academy,	5	9	2
Paisley Grammar School,	5	0	6

Salaries of Teachers.

The salaries paid to teachers in these schools are for the most part very moderate. There appears to be only one case of high pay, namely, that of the English master in the Glasgow High School, who last year drew £1177 from fees, of which he had to pay out £100 as retiring allowance to his predecessor. The rector of the Edinburgh High School drew £759; and there are perhaps a dozen cases of salaries ranging from £400 to £500 a year. The rest are from £100 to £300, or less. It is clear that the absence of endowments in the higher class schools of Scotland prevents these schools, as a rule, from offering positions which would form an inducement to a career of learning.

Subjects taught.

With regard to the subjects taught in the higher class public schools, it appears that in addition to English, Writing, Arithmetic, and Geography, the following are subjects universally, or nearly so, returned as taught:—Latin, Greek, French, German, Mathematics, Drawing, and Book-keeping. Out of the 3343 scholars on the rolls, the following are the numbers returned as having studied during the year:—Latin, 1395; Greek, 305; French, 1028; German, 209; Mathematics, 475; Drawing, 972; Book-keeping, 183.

There is some variety in the practice of the different schools.

Digitized by Google

In the Edinburgh High School, and in the Irvine Academy, no History is returned as taught. In the other schools, 1036 pupils have studied it. Natural Philosophy has been taught (in Edinburgh and Glasgow High Schools and Perth and Dumfries Academies) to 182 pupils; Mechanics (Edinburgh and Glasgow) to 40; Chemistry (Edinburgh and Perth) to 68; Botany and Geology (Edinburgh) to 135; Fencing (Edinburgh and Glasgow) to 214; Singing (Glasgow) to 71; Pianoforte (Leith) to 10; Painting (Glasgow and Perth) to 43; Italian (Perth) to 4.

Peculiarities of Higher Class public schools.

One characteristic of these schools is the amount of free choice with regard to subjects of study allowed to pupils or their parents. This contrasts with the fixed curriculum of the English Grammar Schools. Another peculiarity is that in some of these schools (especially in Glasgow High School) there appears to be no subordination of masters to any one head. The teachers appear to hold the position of equals and rivals to each other.

It would be out of place to attempt here to criticise with any minuteness these returns. It is evident that the education given in the higher class public schools of Scotland is not as yet of a very superior character. The fact that only 475 pupils out of 3343 have been studying Mathematics, and only 305 Greek, shows that the pupils of these schools, as a rule, are not engaged in acquiring either science or scholarship in the higher sense of the term. The main bulk of the education given in the schools at present seems to be not of a distinctly secondary character,—not so much a preparation for the universities or for a learned career, as a solid useful education with a view to practical life.

Examination under Section 62 [2].

The Board of Education have received reports of the examinations of these schools held in accordance with section 62 (6) of the Education Act. It is not necessary to go into these reports, which, to a considerable extent, deal with details as to the performances of the several classes. It must be observed that the school boards have secured most excellent examiners to report upon their schools. Among the number may be mentioned Professors Baynes, Black, Birrell, Fuller, Geddes, Kelland, and Sellar; Drs. Donaldson, Bedford, Jack, and Martin; and Messrs. Kerr (H.M.I.S.) and Beverley. The school boards will doubtless take advantage of the suggestions made to them by such examiners as these, so as, where necessary, to introduce improvements.

Tabulated statistics.

In the Appendix to our Report will be found various tables regarding public elementary schools under school boards, for the year ending 31st December 1874, which furnish interesting and valuable information respecting the state of education in Scotland. The total population of the country, according to the census of 1871, amounted to 3,360,018, and there were at that time 629,254 children between five and thirteen years of age. The annual value of all the lands and heritages in Scotland is, in round numbers, £17,595,544, and the produce of the school rate last year was £223,433. There are 2303 public schools under school boards in the kingdom, conducted by 2529 principal teachers (2027 male and 502 female), assisted by 277 male and 316 female assistants, 1122 sewing mistresses, and 2475 pupil teachers and monitors. On the rolls of these schools there are 290,873 scholars, and the average attendance is 212,206. In these figures are included 204 temporary schools, carried on by school boards until permanent accommodation can be provided, with 31,637 scholars on the roll, and 22,577 in average attendance; and 124 evening schools, with 11,071 scholars on the roll, and 7040 in average attendance.

Sum realized from School Fees. Appendix No. X.

The sum realized from school fees was £114,383. The building grants received last year by the school boards amounted to £4790, and the annual grants under the code to £81,077. The total salaries and emoluments of teachers reached £317,824, and the salaries of the school board officials, clerks, treasurers, and compulsory officers amounted to upwards of £30,000.

Salaries of Teachers and school board officials. Appendix No. XIV.

The average annual salary paid to principal male teachers of public schools in Scotland appears from the tables to be £110, 3s. In the burghs the average is £119, 2s., and in the parishes £108, 11s. The average for each county ranges from £140 in Dumbarton and Renfrew, to £53, 15s. in Shetland. These figures however, do not bring out exactly the annual professional emoluments of public school teachers, as the returns include a considerable number of public schools which have only been in operation for a part of the year. It should also be kept in view that, in most cases, these teachers have free houses and gardens.

Appendix No. XIV.

The rate of salaries paid to principal female teachers, assistant teachers (male and female), pupil teachers, and sewing mistresses, will also be found in the tables.

Appendix No. XIV.

The total amount paid to teachers and school board officials amounted in 1874 to £347,828, which sum was allocated in the ratio of 8·6 per cent. to officials, and 91·3 to teachers. This expenditure shows an average of £1, 3s. 11d. for each scholar on the roll of public schools.

Proportion of average attendance to No. on Roll. Appendix No. XIV.

The proportion which the numbers on the roll and in average attendance at all public schools in Scotland bears to the total number of children between five and thirteen years, is shown to be 46·2 and 33·7 respectively. As might be expected, this proportion is very much lower in the burghs,—being only 30·5 per cent., as against 57·3 in the parishes. The want of public school accommodation in the burghs, and the existence of superior private adventure schools, along with denominational schools, fully account for this discrepancy. When public school accommodation is fully provided, and the compulsory clauses are in general operation, it may be confidently expected that these ratios will be considerably increased.

Appendix No. XIV.

The discrepancy between the number of scholars on the roll and the number in average attendance, is somewhat greater than we anticipated. The tables show that, for all Scotland, the proportion of the average attendance to the number on the roll is 72·9. It is curious and instructive to note that this percentage is slightly higher in the parishes (73·0) than in the burghs (72·7), notwithstanding the fact that the great majority of children in country districts have greater distances to travel to and from school than those in towns. The Lowland counties of Dumfries and Peebles show respectively 81·1 and 80·4 per cent. of the scholars on the roll in average attendance, being the maximum; as against the Highland counties of Caithness and Inverness, where the respective percentages are 62·9 and 62·0, being the minimum.

No. of old Parochial Teachers. Appendix No. XVI. Retiring allowances. Appendix No. XVII.

The number of old parochial teachers in office at the end of December last is returned at 677; and the sum of £1205, 10s. 9d. was paid by school boards during the year 1874, mainly to superannuated teachers of this class.

Settlement of area of Parishes, sec. 9. Saline and Torryburn, Cluny and Midmar. Appendix No. XIX.

In the course of last year, two applications were made to us to settle questions which had arisen regarding the area of parishes for the purposes of the Act. The school boards concerned were those of Saline and Torryburn, in Fife, and Cluny and Midmar, in Aberdeen. The deliverances pronounced will be found in the Appendix.

Sanction to variation of Trust, sec. 46. Langton. Appendix No. XX.

An application, in terms of the latter part of section 46, from the school board of Langton, to vary or depart from the terms of a trust, was also sanctioned by us. The particulars of this case will also be found in the Appendix.

Union of Maybole and Maybole West Church, sec. 17. Appendix No. XXI.

The school boards of Maybole and Maybole West Church, having agreed to combine under section 42 for all purposes under the Act, applied to us to unite the parishes under the provisions of section 17. This union appeared to us to be desirable, and accordingly the parishes were united—the union to come into operation at the next ensuing general election of a school board for the locality.

Visits of members of Board of Education to Parishes and Burghs.

We mentioned in our last Report that we had reason to believe that the visits which we had paid to parishes and burghs, and the meetings we had held with school boards throughout the country, had exercised a beneficial influence on the operations of these boards, and had helped to stimulate exertion, to remove difficulties, and to reconcile differences of opinion respecting the most suitable sites for schools and the extent of school accommodation to be provided. During the course of last year, similar visits have been paid by one of our number, or by the secretary, at the request of the school boards concerned, to 129 parishes and burghs.

Proposals of school boards not disposed of, or not yet carried out.

Owing to the circumstances specified at the commencement of our Report, the proposals made by 232 school boards still remain undisposed of; and we have learned that in a good many cases, in consequence of unexpected obstacles, school boards whose reports have been sanctioned have not yet been able to carry their schemes into effect, so that much still remains to be done before sufficient school accommodation shall have been provided, in accordance with the requirements of the Education Act, in every parish and burgh in Scotland.

We have the honour to be

Your Lordships' most obedient, humble Servants,

J. DON WAUCHOPE, Chairman.
WILLIAM STIRLING-MAXWELL.

* A separate School Board was elected for the island of North Ronaldshay. It was afterwards discovered, however, that, for the purposes of the Education Act, the island must be regarded as part of the Civil Parish of Cross and Burness in the island of Sanday. The School Board of that parish have therefore assumed the charge of educational affairs in North Ronaldshay.

NOTES BY SCHOOL BOARDS ON THE OPERATION OF THE COMPULSORY CLAUSES, WITH GENERAL SUMMARIES OF EACH COUNTY.

SHETLAND.

Delting.—Many families in the parish have no school within reach of them. But by the issuing of printed notices containing information regarding the schools and urging the attendance of children, and by the visits of the officer, results, satisfactory upon the whole, have been obtained.

Dunrossness.—Adequate school accommodation has not yet been provided, and, consequently, the compulsory clauses have not been enforced.

Fetlar and North Yell.—Sixty defaulting parents have been admonished and warned.

Sandsting and Aithsting.—There is only one school open in this parish under the School Board, while seven are required. Action as to building and otherwise operating under the Act is suspended, in the hope that there will be some amendment of it.

Unst.—Twenty-three parents were summoned before School Board. All except two appeared. The coldness of the weather, distance from school, want of proper clothing, and ill-health were the principal reasons assigned for the non-attendance of the children.

In two or three cases in which the Parochial Board have declined to pay fees, the parents have refused to send their children to school for want of money to pay the fees.

General Summary.—On account of the want of school accommodation in several parishes, the compulsory clauses have been only partially enforced in Shetland. Five Parochial Boards granted 14 applications under section 69, and three of these Boards refused 15 applications.

ORKNEY.

Cross and Burness.—The School Board have not been in a position to enforce the compulsory clauses on account of the deficiency of school accommodation.

Kirkwall (Burgh) and St. Ola (Parish).—In order to keep down the rates, poor children have hitherto been assisted from various sources in town.

Rousay and Egilshay.—The School Board have experienced some difficulty in dealing with boys under thirteen years of age, who are employed in herding during at least six months of the year. In several cases of this kind, the parents were unable to feed, clothe, and educate their children, and the School Board felt it necessary to abstain from taking any extreme measures.

General Summary.—The School Boards of most of the parishes in Orkney report in terms similar to those used by the Board of Cross and Burness.

Four Parochial Boards granted 8 applications for payment of fees under section 69, and one of these Boards refused 1 application.

CAITHNESS.

Bower.—Nothing has yet been done to carry into effect the compulsory clauses. The want of sufficient school accommodation is the reason.

Canisbay.—The School Board got 300 copies of the compulsory clauses of the Act printed, and their officer handed a copy to every parent in the parish. It has not been necessary to institute proceedings against any parent.

Dunnet.—The greatest obstacle to attendance is the inability of poor parents to procure clothes and shoes for their children. The Parochial Board, in some extreme cases, order certain articles besides paying the fees.

Thurso.—141 summonses were issued by School Board, and the results were satisfactory. The Parochial Board refuse to give any allowance for clothes to children whose parents are not paupers, and the want of clothing prevents some children from attending school.

General Summary.—In some parishes, the want of school accommodation has rendered the School Boards unable to enforce the compulsory clauses.

Digitized by Google

Five Parochial Boards have granted 51 applications for payment of fees under section 69, and four Boards have refused 29 applications.

SUTHERLAND.

Assynt.—The School Board have hitherto hesitated to prosecute defaulting parents before the Sheriff, owing to the distance of the parish from Dornoch. They fear, however, that they will be under the necessity of resorting to extreme measures in some cases.

Clyne.—The great difficulty is the poverty of the parents, who cannot provide for their children clothing to enable them to go to school in winter. The School Board recommend that School Boards should have power to grant exemption from payment of fees. The fees cannot, in many cases, be recovered from the parents; and the provisions of the Act upon this point do not work well.

Kildonan and Loth.—The School Boards of these parishes report in terms somewhat similar to those employed by Board of Clyne.

General Summary.—In the parishes where there is sufficient accommodation, the School Boards seem to have done something towards enforcing the clauses, and generally with good effect.

Six Parochial Boards have granted 12 applications for payment of school fees, and four Boards have refused 14 applications.

ROSS.

Alness.—Officer has urged parents to send their children to school. Other measures cannot be taken in the meantime as the existing school buildings do not afford accommodation for all the children of school age in the parish.

Cromarty.—Six parents were prosecuted, and five convicted. Small fines were imposed. The cost of prosecutions has not been ascertained.

Dingwall.—The Parochial Board have resolved to give to each of the principal teachers of the two public schools £10 a-year, for the education of poor children.

Gairloch.—The new schools being only in process of erection, the compulsory clauses have not yet been strictly enforced.

Kilmuir-Easter, Kiltearn, Knockbain, Lochalsh, Nigg, Rosskeen, Urquhart.—The reports are similar to those of the School Boards of Alness and Gairloch.

Lochbroom.—The School Board issued notices, and also requested clergymen and other parties of influence to explain the compulsory clauses to the people. The results have been, on the whole, satisfactory. The applications to the Parochial Board under section 69 (27 in all, of which 11 were granted and 16 refused) have not been sufficiently numerous to enable the School Board to pronounce definitely on the point, but they fear that difficulty will be caused by their inability to exempt from payment of fees, and the refusal of the Parochial Board to make payment.

Rosemarkie.—A good deal of difficulty is experienced with regard to the payment of school fees. Some of the people are very poor, though not quite in a position to warrant an application to the Parochial Board under section 69.

Lochs and Uig.—No compulsory officer has yet been appointed, as there is only one public school in each of the parishes. Clergymen and others try to induce parents to send their children to school.

Stornoway.—The issuing of notices has brought a number of children to school. No prosecution has been required.

General Summary.—The want of school accommodation has prevented the enforcement of the compulsory clauses in a considerable number of parishes. In the other parishes, some steps have been taken to bring out a larger number of children, and to secure regularity of attendance.

Eight Parochial Boards have granted 42, and refused 35, applications for payment of school fees.

INVERNESS.

Ardersier.—The great difficulty of the School Board is to get the children of careless parents to attend regularly.

Digitized by Google

Two applications for aid under section 69 were made to the Parochial Board. One was granted, and the other, which, in the opinion of the School Board, was quite as well founded, was refused.

Laggan.—The result of the operation of the clauses has, on the whole, been satisfactory. But, during winter, children who reside at a distance from the schools cannot attend regularly.

Duirinish, Portree, and Snizort.—There are arrears of school fees due by parties, for whom the Parochial Boards will not pay.

General Summary.—In a considerable number of parishes, the want of school accommodation, the severity of the weather, and the distances which, in many cases, intervene between the homes of the children and the nearest schools, have prevented the School Boards from taking much direct action in the way of enforcing the compulsory clauses.

Seven Parochial Boards have granted 13 applications for payment of school fees, and five Boards (four being in both lists) have refused 16 applications.

NAIRN.

Ardclach.—The officer, who has a list of the names of the children in the parish, makes periodical visits to the schools and ascertains if any are absent. No parent has ever required more than one call from the officer.

General Remarks.—The want of sufficient school accommodation has, in several cases, prevented Boards from enforcing the compulsory clauses hitherto.

Two Parochial Boards granted 10 applications for payment of fees, and two Boards (one included in previous two) refused 2 applications.

ELGIN.

Alves, Cromdale, Dallas, Drainie, Edinkillie, and Rothes.—The compulsory clauses have not been strictly enforced for want of school accommodation.

Forres (Burgh).—The compulsory officer, by repeated applications, secures the attendance of scholars at the schools.

New Spynie.—No application has been made to the Parochial Board under section 69, but a number of children have been taught without fee.

General Summary.—In those parishes in which the school accommodation is almost or quite sufficient, the visits of the officers, the issuing of notices, and the summoning of parents before the respective School Boards, have had beneficial results.

Nine Parochial Boards granted 40 applications under section 69, and four Boards refused 10 applications. Three Boards are in both lists.

BANFF.

Banff (Burgh).—Of 124 children whose parents were summoned before School Board, 94 have been sent to efficient schools, 16 have been certified to be mentally or physically unable to attend school, 12 are over or under age, or sufficiently educated, and 2 have still to be dealt with. The great difficulty is the want of power to compel continuous and regular attendance.

Banff and Ord, Botriphnie, Boyndie, Cullen, Grange, Inverkeithny, Rathven, and St. Fergus.—The compulsory clauses have not been strictly enforced for want of sufficient school accommodation.

Gamrie.—Two parents were prosecuted, and one was convicted. The fine imposed (1s.) was merely nominal, owing to the case being the first tried in the county. Cost of prosecution, £2, 13s. 8d.

Rothiemay.—The School Board regret that they have not power to relieve parents of payment of school fees in whole or in part. They believe that many parents would rather pay a lower rate of fee than make application to the Parochial Board,—the latter course being more or less associated with the idea of pauperism.

General Summary.—Nine Parochial Boards granted 114 applications for payment of school fees, and eight Boards refused 50 applications. Six Boards are in both lists.

ABERDEEN.

Aberdeen (Burgh).—Officer visited about 900 defaulting parents in 1874, and warning notices were also issued to both parents and employers with satisfactory results. A more extensive exercise of the Board's compulsory powers must be reserved until new schools are opened.

Crimond.—The chief difficulty is irregularity of attendance, which brings down the average. The causes of this are:—(1.) The fishing population moves to Peterhead for the herring fishing in the beginning of July, and the children lose from that date to the harvest holidays. (2.) The parish is a very extensive one, and the winter weather on the east coast is frequently very inclement, so that the attendance every day of small children, who have a considerable distance to travel, can hardly be enforced.

Ellon.—In cases where the Parochial Board have refused to pay fees, the children are generally withdrawn from school until the parents are warned and threatened, and when they are sent back no fees are paid.

Foveran.—One parent, whose application for payment of fees was refused by the Parochial Board, had to be summoned by the School Board before the Small-Debt Court. The case seemed to be one of want of will rather than want of ability.

Fyvie.—The clauses as they now stand are difficult to carry out. They are both useless and harsh—useless, because they do not prevent irregular attendance, and harsh as respects parents whose children's assistance is, at some seasons, indispensable. The School Board are endeavouring to work the clause (70) as discreetly as possible, and by its operation the attendance has been increased.

Huntly.—It was found necessary to prosecute one parent, who was fined 1s., and £1 expenses, with the alternative of 10 days' imprisonment. Cost of prosecution, £6, 8s. 2½d.

Millbrex.—The great difficulty is irregularity of attendance. The Education Act does not say how many attendances of the children at school will be considered a fair fulfilment of the parents' duty, as set forth in the 69th section of the Act.

Old Deer.—On account of the facilities afforded for obtaining free education in this parish by the Milne Bequest, Watt's Trust, and Bruce Fund, there ought to be little difficulty in regard to the payment of fees.

Rayne.—Difficulty is experienced in getting some children to attend school regularly after they are enrolled. They stay away for little or no reason.

General Summary.—In a considerable number of parishes in this county, the deficiency of school accommodation has prevented the compulsory clauses from being enforced hitherto. But, as a general rule, it is reported that the visits of the officers, the issuing of notices, and the summoning of parents before the Boards, have had the effect of increasing the attendance of children. Thirty-eight Parochial Boards granted 266 applications for payment of school fees; twenty-six Boards refused 138 applications. Twenty-one Boards are in both lists.

KINCARDINE.

Arbuthnott.—The issuing of notices has had, in every case, the effect of securing the attendance at school of all the children involved.

General Summary.—The Boards of most of the other parishes in the county report in terms similar to those employed by the Board of Arbuthnott. But, in some cases, the compulsory clauses were not enforced in 1874, on account of the deficiency of school accommodation.

Eight Parochial Boards paid fees for 20 children under section 69; four Boards (two of which are included in the eight) refused 15 applications.

FORFAR.

Aberlemno.—Personal visitation on the part of the officer, notices sent to the parents of irregular attenders, and general notices occasionally posted up on the church doors, have been followed by beneficial results.

Digitized by Google

Arbroath (Burgh).—Upwards of 100 children have been sent to school through the operation of the compulsory clauses. No prosecution has been required.

Barry.—The officer keeps up a constant visitation, which tends greatly to secure regularity of attendance.

Brechin (Burgh).—Twenty-nine summonses were issued to employers who had children under thirteen years of age in their service, and in most cases the notice had the desired effect.

Broughty-Ferry (Burgh).—Persuasion, threats, remonstrances by the officer, by the School Board as a body, and by the individual members, have been tried; and though the attendance of scholars is not yet so regular as is desired, there has been a great and manifest improvement.

Carmyllie.—Two parents were prosecuted, convicted, and warned by the Sheriff that, should they be brought before him again, he would fine them. Cost of prosecutions, £1, 0s. 6d.

Dundee (Burgh).—1175 warning notices were issued to parents during 1874. It is understood that 1007 children were sent to school in consequence. 128 parents were summoned before School Board; and 161 children were sent to school as the result. Seven parents were prosecuted and convicted. Two were dismissed with an admonition; two were fined 2s. 6d. each; one was fined 2s. 6d., with 4s. expenses; one, 10s.; and one, 20s. Total cost of prosecutions, £4, 4s. 2d. The chief difficulty is in regard to clothing for poor children.

Dunnichen.—One parent has been prosecuted, but not convicted—a result which, in the opinion of the School Board, has tended to weaken their hands in enforcing the compulsory clauses. Cost of prosecution, £1, 8s. The great difficulty is to secure regularity of attendance.

Edzell.—One parent was prosecuted, and pled that he was himself conducting the education of his child. The Sheriff, while deprecating such a course, considered the attempt sufficiently systematic to warrant him in finding the charge not proven. Cost of prosecution, £2, 13s. 1d.

Forfar (Burgh).—The compulsory clauses have not been strictly enforced on account of want of school accommodation.

Kirriemuir.—One parent was prosecuted. He pled guilty, and was dismissed by the Sheriff with an admonition. Cost of prosecution, £1, 10s. In one or two cases children have not been sent to school in consequence of the Parochial Board's refusal to pay the fees.

Lochlee.—The population is much scattered, the roads are bad, and the weather is often inclement. In these circumstances, the attendance of children cannot be so regular as in more favourably situated and more thickly peopled districts. The Code should either require a smaller number of attendances, in order to secure the Parliamentary grant, or allow a larger sum on account of the average attendance in outlying localities.

Monifieth.—The chief difficulty in working the compulsory clauses relates to the education of 'half-timers.' The present regulations are not sufficient for the purpose of securing the efficient education of such children.

Montrose (Burgh).—One parent was prosecuted, convicted, and fined 2s. 6d., with the alternative of three days' imprisonment. The fine was paid. Cost of prosecution, £2, 2s. 8d.

Montrose (Landward).—It has not been necessary to have any prosecution in this parish, but some children require a good deal of supervision, and after all do not attend very regularly.

Rescobie.—There is no compulsory officer, and the compulsory clauses have not been worked.

General Summary.—In most of the parishes in this county, steady and useful work has been done in the way of enforcing the compulsory clauses. The visits of the officers, the issuing of warning notices, and the summoning of parents before the Boards, have had a beneficial effect.

Sixteen Parochial Boards have granted 102 applications for payment of school fees, and twelve Boards have refused 68 applications. Ten of the latter Boards are included in the sixteen.

PERTH.

Abernyte.—The parish has been divided into districts, and each member of the Board takes charge of a district, and is practically the officer for that district.

Alyth.—The officer has hitherto by his visits been able to secure the attendance of the children at school.

Bendochy.—The School Board have caused printed notices containing sections 69, 70, 71, 72, and 73 of the Education (Scotland) Act to be circulated by their officer through the parish.

Blairgowrie.—The summoning of parents before the Board has been found sufficient without resorting to prosecution.

Clunie.—The School Board have found difficulty in securing the attendance of children at school after the re-opening, and in the spring and early summer, when there is a great demand for children to labour in the fields. With the view of inducing regularity of attendance, the Board have fixed a low scale of fees to be paid by children who qualify themselves by length of attendance for the Inspector's examination. This plan has so far worked well, but it would be an improvement (if it were legal) to raise the higher fee considerably and make it a penalty for irregularity, instead of lowering the fee as a reward for regularity.

The School Board prosecuted one parent. They did so only after other measures failed. He was convicted and fined 10s. with expenses, £1, which were paid. The conviction has been useful as an example.

Dull and Logierait.—It has been found necessary in some instances to insist on the attendance at school of children above ten years of age who wished to go out as herds during the summer months. No prosecution has been required.

Innerwick in Glenlyon.—Two parents and one employer were prosecuted and convicted. No particulars are given.

Little Dunkeld.—School Board experience most trouble from irregular attendance.

Logierait.—The enforced attendance of children has given rise to great complaint on the part not only of parents, but of farmers who require labour, as being most oppressive.

Perth (Burgh).—The School Board have found difficulty in dealing with cases of children who are either kept at home to take care of younger children, or are sent to work in order that their earnings may help their parents. The want of clothing, especially in winter, is also a difficulty in the way of enforcing the compulsory clauses. Either a separate ragged school or a provision for supplying fees, clothing, and food seems to be necessary to secure effective dealing with the substratum of cases.

St. Martins.—In two cases the Board instructed their clerk to inform the Boards of two neighbouring parishes that children of school age belonging to this parish were employed in those parishes. The result of the communication was that the employers were expostulated with and the evil was removed.

Scone.—The School Board have not appointed an officer, but have themselves visited the parents whose children have been absent from school. The general attendance has been good.

General Summary.—In general, the reports from the School Boards of the other parishes are to the effect that the visits of the compulsory officer and the issuing of notices have had a beneficial effect.

Twenty-six Parochial Boards have granted 124 applications for payment of school fees, and thirteen Boards (eleven of which are included in the twenty-six) refused 31 applications.

FIFE.

Abdie.—Summonses to appear before School Board have been effectual without prosecution.

Aberdour.—Notices have been effectual without prosecution, though, from such circumstances as the mother of a family working out and the older children having younger ones to look after, attendance at school is in many cases irregular.

Digitized by Google

Anstruther-Easter.—Visits of officer secure attendance without farther measures being required.

Anstruther-Wester, Arngask, and Cameron.—Notices effectual.

Lochgelly, Auchterderran, Kettle, Newburgh, Ballingry, Kirkcaldy (Burgh), and Kennoway.—Clauses have not been fully enforced on account of deficiency of accommodation, now being remedied.

Dalgety.—The School Board examined some children under thirteen who were at work, and ordered three of them to be sent back to school—an order which was obeyed.

Dysart.—108 notices were issued, and 74 children sent to school as the result. One parent was prosecuted, and fined 20s. with 20s. expenses.

Forgan.—Fifty-three notices were issued. All the children involved (58 in number) were sent to school.

General Summary.—The returns from Fife show generally that there is considerable activity on the part of School Boards in enforcing the compulsory clauses. The officers visit defaulting parents and issue warning notices to them. In 183 cases, parents have been formally summoned before the Boards. These means have been found to be, on the whole, effectual to secure an increased and pretty steady attendance at school, though several Boards complain of irregularity of attendance. Twenty-one Parochial Boards granted 62 applications for the payment of fees under section 69. Five Boards (of which four are included in the twenty) refused nine applications. The refusals appear to have been warranted, and no statement is made that difficulties ensued.

KINROSS.

Portmoak.—Cases of entire absence from school are rare, except among children under six and at a distance from school. A warning by the officer has generally been attended to.

Irregularity of attendance is a more common evil, with which the School Board are at present considering how to deal.

Orwell.—Eight parents were summoned to appear before School Board. Seven sent their children to school, and no prosecution was thought to be necessary.

General Summary.—No prosecution in this county. One Parochial Board granted one application for payment of school fees.

CLACKMANNAN.

Alloa (Burgh).—On 21st December 1874, there were 219 more children at school than there were when the Act came into operation. The visits of the officer and the summoning of parents before the School Board have generally had the desired effect. But three parents had to be prosecuted in 1874. All were convicted: two were fined 5s. each, with 10s. expenses, but the penalties were not exacted, as the children were immediately sent to school; the third was fined 20s., and the sentence was enforced. Cost of prosecutions, £5, 16s.

Tillicoultry.—The visits of the officer and the issuing of warning notices have produced beneficial results. The average school attendance has increased by 70 during the year.

General Summary.—The Boards of the other parishes in this county generally report in terms similar to those used by Tillicoultry Board.

Four Parochial Boards granted 18 applications for payment of school fees, three of these Boards refused four such applications.

STIRLING.

Bothkennar.—Owing to the activity of the officer, the School Board have not as yet been under the necessity of prosecuting defaulters.

Campsie.—Teachers complain that the attendance of the scholars is often irregular, but on account of the prevalence of fever and other diseases, no active steps have been taken by the School Board to remedy this evil.

Digitized by Google

Fintry.—In a district like this, where the population is scattered, and many of the children live three miles and more from school, those between five and seven have not been pressed to attend. They could not walk six miles a-day.

Logie.—The School Board have not been under the necessity of prosecuting any parent or employer. The school attendance has been greatly increased since the compulsory clauses were put in force.

Stirling (Burgh).—The School Board, though repeatedly requested to furnish return, have neglected to do so.

General Summary.—The want of adequate accommodation has prevented several School Boards from enforcing the compulsory clauses in the meantime. Other Boards report in terms similar to those used by the Board of Bothkennar.

Thirteen Parochial Boards have granted 60 applications for payment of school fees; eight Boards (six of which are included in the thirteen) have refused 17 applications.

DUMBARTON.

Dumbarton (Burgh).—The School Board have experienced great difficulty in dealing with the cases (35 in all) in which the Parochial Board refused to pay school fees.

Old or West Kilpatrick.—The officer has a list of all the children in the parish between the ages of five and thirteen. He makes frequent visits to all the schools in the parish, and notes absentees. As occasion requires, he complains verbally to the parents, and then, if necessary, other measures are resorted to. 113 notices were issued in 1874, and 24 parents were summoned to appear before School Board. It was found necessary to prosecute four parents, three of whom were convicted, and fined each 5s. and 5s. expenses, or, failing payment, 10 days' imprisonment. The penalties were paid. Cost of four prosecutions, £12, 7s. 2d.

The very heavy cost of prosecutions will have the effect of deterring School Boards from prosecuting defaulters.

General Summary.—In several parishes in this county, the deficiency of school accommodation has prevented the School Boards from enforcing in the meantime the compulsory clauses. In others, the issuing of notices and the summoning of parents have had a good effect without prosecutions being required.

Five Parochial Boards granted 81 applications for payment of school fees; six Boards refused 63 such applications.

ARGYLL.

Acharacle, Ardnamurchan, Kilmallie, Morven, and Strontian.—The school accommodation being as yet deficient, the compulsory clauses have not been rigidly enforced.

Campbeltown.—Hand bills were printed and circulated, warning parents and others that the compulsory clauses would be put in force. Eleven parents have been prosecuted, and five convicted. The sentence in each case was a fine of 10s., with 20s. expenses. Cost of prosecutions have not yet been ascertained.

Craignish, Glenorchy, and Inishail.—The School Boards feel difficulty in satisfactorily working the compulsory clauses during the summer or herding season.

Dunoon and Kilmun.—At least 100 children are now attending school, who, but for the compulsory clauses, would not in all probability have done so.

Oban.—Three parents were prosecuted, and two convicted. Procurator-Fiscal's account not rendered.

Kilchoman.—The Parochial Board have refused to pay school fees for any but pauper children.

Lochgilphead. — One parent was prosecuted, convicted, and admonished. Cost of prosecution not yet ascertained.

General Summary.—The enforcement of the compulsory clauses has been more or less fully attended to in all the parishes in which there is sufficient school accommodation.

Sixteen Parochial Boards have granted 61 applications under section 69; nine Boards have refused 28 applications. Six Boards are in both lists.

BUTE.

Kilmory.—One parent was prosecuted, but the prosecution was abandoned when he promised to send his children regularly to school.

Rothesay (Burgh).—Five parents were prosecuted. Four were convicted and fined—three, 1s. 6d. each, with 1s. 6d. expenses; and one, 20s. Account for conducting prosecutions not yet rendered.

General Summary.—Three Parochial Boards have granted 13 applications for payment of school fees; and three Boards have refused 4 applications.

RENFREW.

Cathcart.—The issuing of notices and the summoning of defaulting parents before the School Board have been followed by good results. No prosecution has been required.

Eaglesham.—The officer receives lists of the absentees from the teachers of the public school, and also from the teachers of the Female Industrial School, once a fortnight, and visits them to ascertain the reason of their absence. All the children of school age in the parish are at one or other of the schools.

Eastwood.—Some difficulty was experienced at first on account of the refusal of the Parochial Board to pay fees in particular cases; but a committee of the School Board had a conference with a committee of the Parochial Board, and a satisfactory and amicable understanding for the future was arrived at. It is very difficult to get the children who are sent to school under the operation of the compulsory clauses to attend regularly.

Erskine.—No prosecution was required in 1874. The School Board are very unwilling to prosecute on account of the great expense that will be incurred.

Greenock.—An arrangement has now been made with the Procurator-Fiscal to conduct prosecutions for 31s. 6d. per case, with, in addition, the expenses which may be recovered from the parents. This arrangement is to continue during the pleasure of the School Board. The School Board have experienced difficulty in dealing with poor parents whose applications for payment of school fees were refused by the Parochial Board.

Seventeen parents were prosecuted in 1874, and sixteen were convicted. In most of the cases, a small fine was imposed. Total cost of prosecutions, £43, 11s. 6d.

Levern.—Through the visits of the officer, the issuing of notices, and the summoning of parents before the Board, the attendance at the public school has increased more than 30 per cent.

Two parents were prosecuted, convicted, and fined 10s. each, and costs. Cost of prosecutions, £1, 7s. 4d.

The Parochial Boards refuse to pay fees for children whose parents are not receiving parish relief; and the School Board have therefore to teach without charge the children of non-paupers who are unable to pay fees.

Paisley (Burgh).—The School Board have not yet put the compulsory clauses in operation for want of school accommodation.

Port-Glasgow.—Three parents were prosecuted, two of whom were convicted and fined 1s. each. Cost of prosecutions, £10, 18s. 4d. On account of the expense, the Board have hesitated to order more prosecutions, but, notwithstandng, they have been able to secure an improved attendance at the schools in the burgh.

General Summary.—In some parishes the compulsory clauses were not enforced in consequence of the insufficiency of school accommodation. But, on the whole, through the operations of the officers, and the other means employed, satisfactory results have been obtained.

Thirteen Parochial Boards granted 180 applications under section 69; eleven refused 97 applications.

AYR.

Beith, Crosshill, New Cumnock, Sraiton, Dalrymple.—Compulsory clauses have not been strictly enforced on account of want of school accommodation.

Dailly.—Officer visits defaulting parents. Ten children not attending school formerly are now in regular attendance. No farther means have been found necessary.

Dalry.—A large number of defaulters have been from time to time summoned before School Board. All have promised to send their children to school, and there have been no prosecutions. But the attendance is very irregular on the part of the children in the mining districts, and the officer has to be constantly visiting to keep the parents up to the mark. During severe weather it is sometimes difficult to know how cases, in which want of shoes and clothing is pleaded as a reason for not sending children to school, should be dealt with.

Fenwick.—There have been no cases of absolute neglect or refusal to send children to school. But irregular attendance is too common. School Board try to induce parents to improve in this respect, and with some success. Established and United Presbyterian Churches have paid the fees in all cases of poverty. There have consequently been no applications to Parochial Board under section 69.

Galston.—One parent was prosecuted and convicted. Cost of prosecution, £4, 5s. 5d.

Kilmarnock (Burgh).—301 summonses have been issued. No prosecutions have been yet required. School Board find that the payment of fees by Parochial Board does not often meet the case of poor parents—say widows—who need their children's earnings.

Kilwinning.—The visits of the officer, and the summoning of defaulters before the Board have had, on the whole, the desired effect. But the time of the officer, who receives £1 a-week, is largely occupied in watching and dealing with cases of irregular attendance.

Largs.—Three prosecutions. Cost, £8, 14s. 8d. One parent was convicted and fined 5s.; another absconded. The third promised amendment, and prosecution was fallen from.

Riccarton.—One prosecution. Person (the parent) convicted, and fined 5s. Cost, £3, 11s. 2d.

West Kilbride.—One prosecution of a parent. Defaulter convicted and fined 5s. Cost, £5, 19s. 4d. School Board complain of cost of prosecution as being a drawback to the strict enforcement of the compulsory clauses.

General Summary.—The general result in Ayrshire seems to have been satisfactory. In almost every parish the officer has been at work, and his visits, and the summoning of defaulting parents before the Board, have led to a considerable increase in the attendance. But the class of parents chiefly dealt with must be constantly kept at to secure anything like regularity of attendance.

Twenty-four Parochial Boards granted aid in 199 cases under section 69. Twenty-one Boards refused 62 applications. Of the Boards, seventeen are included in both lists. No special cases of difficulty are mentioned.

LANARK.

Airdrie (Burgh).—Four parents were prosecuted, convicted, and fined 5s. each, with 10s. expenses. Total cost of prosecutions, £8.

Avondale.—The trustees of a bequest by the late Rev. Robert Young, for the education of poor children, pay the school fees in a number of cases.

Cambusnethan.—Three parents were prosecuted, convicted, and fined 5s. each, with 20s. expenses. Total cost of prosecutions, £12.

East Kilbride.—The experience of the School Board points to the conclusion that the practical tendency of the relation of the two Boards (Parochial and School) is to hang up or shelve cases in which the question of ability to pay school fees is concerned.

Glasgow.—Officers visit defaulting parents and remonstrate with them. In this way 4560 children have been sent to school.

3330 warning notices have been issued, and in consequence, 2095 children have been sent to school.

466 parents have been summoned before School Board, and 375 additional children were sent to school.

Thirty-three parents were prosecuted, and twenty-four convicted. Cost of prosecutions, £58, 9s. 3d. The sum of £15, 10s. of fines and costs imposed by Sheriff, only part of which has been received, will fall to be deducted from cost.

Govan.—Five parents were prosecuted and convicted. Four were fined 20s. each, and 20s. expenses, and warrant was granted to poind and arrest their effects to that amount; but only in one case have the School Board been able to recover the penalty. Cost of prosecutions, £11, 19s. 1d.

Maryhill.—Two parents were prosecuted. One was convicted and fined 20s., and 20s. expenses. Cost of prosecutions, £6, 0s. 4d.

New Monkland.—Two parents were prosecuted. One was convicted and fined 10s., and 10s. expenses. Cost of prosecutions, £5.

Stonehouse.—The Parochial Board refuse to pay school fees under section 69 in every case in which the parent is an able-bodied man.

General Summary.—In a considerable number of parishes the School Boards have been unable to enforce the compulsory clauses on account of the inadequacy of the existing school accommodation. Wherever the clauses have been put in operation, the result has been more or less satisfactory.

Sixteen Parochial Boards have granted 99 applications for payment of school fees under section 69; and ten Boards (all except one included in the sixteen) have refused 49 applications.

LINLITHGOW.

Torphichen.—One parent was prosecuted, and promised to the Sheriff that his child would be sent to school. The Sheriff adjourned the trial for a fortnight, and, the parent having fulfilled his promise, the case was dropped.

General Summary.—Except in parishes in which sufficient school accommodation has not yet been provided, the usual methods have been adopted in this county, and with a fair measure of success.

Eight Parochial Boards have granted 35 applications for payment of school fees; and five Boards (four of which are included in the eight) have refused 11 applications.

EDINBURGH.

Dalkeith (Burgh).—The mode of prosecution ought to be simplified, and some provision should be made for more effectually dealing with incorrigible children who are beyond the control of their parents.

Edinburgh (City).—152 parents were summoned before School Board. All except three sent their children to school. The three were ordered for prosecution, but two of them disappeared, and one went to the poorhouse.

Glencorse.—Two parents were prosecuted at a cost of £5, 9s. 9d. The School Board consider that a cheaper method of dealing with defaulting parents should be introduced.

Kirknewton.—In no case have the parents refused to send their children to school; but in several cases the children are kept at home occasionally without sufficient excuse.

Lasswade.—Two parents were prosecuted; one was convicted and fined 1s.; the charge against the other was withdrawn. Cost of prosecution, £6, 18s. 0d.

Leith (Burgh).—Want of school accommodation has hitherto prevented the compulsory clauses from being fully enforced.

The South Leith Parochial Board have a school under their management at which the children of paupers are educated. They decline to pay school fees under section 69. All the relief they are willing to give is free education at their own school. Several parents object to this, as ranking their children with paupers. The School Board think the difficulty might be overcome by admitting the children of such parents to the public schools at nominal fees. As religious instruction is given in the Parochial Board school without the time-table required by section 68, the School Board are not satisfied that the Parochial Board are acting in accordance with section 69 when they send children to that school instead of paying school fees.

Musselburgh.—Under the operation of the compulsory clauses, 82 children have been sent to school who were not attending previously. Irregularity of attendance has also been much diminished.

One parent was prosecuted, convicted, and fined 6d. Cost of prosecution, £4.

West Calder.—The great difficulty experienced in carrying out the compulsory clauses in this parish has arisen from the migratory nature of a considerable portion of the mining population.

General Summary.—The School Boards of most of the parishes in this county have been able to secure an increased and more steady attendance at school without resorting to extreme measures.

Twenty-one Parochial Boards have granted 191 applications for payment of fees under section 69; ten Boards have refused 103 such applications.

HADDINGTON.

Aberlady.—Officer visits schools, and ascertains whether the attendance of scholars has been regular. In cases of irregularity, officer calls upon parents. In four cases, warning notices were sent to parents. One was summoned to appear before School Board, and gave an explanation, which was accepted. No prosecution.

Dunbar (Parish).—Shortly after election of School Board, a printed notice to parents and guardians of children, containing extracts from sections 69, 70, and 72 of the Act, was left at every house within the parish. Officer reports defaulters to School Board, and the clerk, as occasion requires, sends special notices to parents or guardians.

Haddington (Burgh).—The visits and letters of the officer have effected a great increase in the school attendance.

North Berwick.—No parents have absolutely failed and omitted to provide elementary education for their children, but considerable difficulty is experienced with the irregular attenders, and some alteration of the Act is urgently called for to enable School Boards to deal effectively with such cases.

Pencaitland.—Twenty-nine summonses to appear before School Board were issued. As the result, 28 children were sent to school. The Board resolved to prosecute three parents, but, the children being then sent to school, the prosecution was rendered unnecessary.

Tranent.—Considerable difficulty has been experienced in cases where the Parochial Board have refused to pay school fees in whole or in part.

General Summary.—In most of the parishes in this county the visits of the officer, the issuing of warning notices to parents, and the summoning of the worst defaulters before the respective Boards, have produced satisfactory results. There does not appear to have been any prosecution in the county.

Nine Parochial Boards granted 27 applications under section 69 for the payment of school fees. Five Boards (four of which are included in the previous nine) refused 15 applications.

BERWICK.

Cockburnspath.—The officer reports defaulting parents, to whom the clerk sends notices. These, as a rule, have had the desired effect of securing the attendance of the children at school.

Edrom.—One parent prosecuted. Cost of prosecution, £1, 18s. 9d. Sheriff allowed defaulter one month, within which he might send his children to school. They were sent, and have since been regular in attendance.

Fogo.—The greatest difficulty has been experienced in the case of a parent, the mother of four illegitimate children, for one of whom the Parochial Board have refused to pay fees.

Foulden.—In this parish three members of the School Board have undertaken the duty of compulsory officers, and make periodical visits throughout all the parish.

Digitized by Google

General Summary.—The reports from most of the School Boards in this county are to the same effect as the report from the Board of Cockburnspath. There has been only one prosecution in the county.

Eight Parochial Boards granted 20 applications for payment of school fees; six refused 11 applications. Of these Boards, three are included in both lists.

PEEBLES.

Drumelzier.—The School Board summoned four defaulting parents to appear before them. Two gave excuses which were considered satisfactory, and two sent their children to school.

General Summary.—Very little is reported from Peeblesshire. There appear to have been no prosecutions. Three Parochial Boards granted three applications for payment of school fees, and one Board (included in preceding three) refused one application.

SELKIRK.

Galashiels (Burgh).—Officer calls on defaulting parents or sends them notices If no improvement takes place, defaulters are summoned before the School Board. In 1874, eighteen parents were summoned. Sixteen promised to attend to the education of their children. Two were prosecuted and convicted. One was dismissed with an admonition, the other was fined 10s. or seven days' imprisonment. The Fiscal has not sent in any account of the expenses of the prosecutions.

In May 1873, the total number of children within the burgh was 1521, and of these there were attending school, ...	1202
In December 1874, the attendance was believed to be about . .	1520
Increase	318

Selkirk (Burgh).—The School Board have much anxiety as to the manner in which children working in factories and attending school half-time only should be dealt with.

General Summary.—The reports from the landward School Boards in Selkirkshire do not raise any special question.

One Parochial Board granted an application for payment of school fees; two Boards refused 10 applications.

ROXBURGH.

Sprouston.—Fifteen summonses were issued. No prosecution was required.

Jedburgh (Burgh).—One parent and three employers were summoned before School Board. The children involved were all withdrawn from work and sent back to school.

Ashkirk.—Compulsory clauses have not yet been strictly enforced on account of want of school accommodation.

Cavers.—Four summonses had the desired effect of bringing five children to school without further measures being required.

Melrose.—Two parents were prosecuted. One was convicted and fined 10s.; the other sent his child to school, and proceedings were dropped. Total cost of prosecutions, £5, 18s. 2d.

Hawick (Burgh).—Every Saturday the officer obtains a list of absentees during the previous week from the teachers of all the public schools. The teachers of the private adventure schools also give him information. He has the names of all the children in the burgh between five and thirteen, and as they must all be accounted for, he knows about all the children except those who have come to town since the list was made up. A very large amount of good has been done by the compulsory clauses here. The great difficulty is with half-timers, a large number of whom are employed in the factories. They are too much sheltered under the Factory Acts.

St. Boswells.—All the children of school age are receiving instruction either at home or in school. What the School Board have to contend with is irregularity of attendance. The officer constantly visits absentees, and urges more regular attendance.

General Summary.—In general the reports from the School Boards of the other parishes show that good has been effected by the visits of the officers, the issuing of warning notices, and the summoning of defaulting parents.

Six Parochial Boards have granted 15 applications for payment of school fees, and five Boards have refused 19 applications. Three Boards are included in both lists.

DUMFRIES.

Carlaverock.—The officer visits every school monthly, notes the names of absent scholars, goes to their homes, reminds the parents of the compulsory clauses, and reports to the School Board. No prosecution has been required.

Dumfries (Burgh).—Compulsory clauses have not been enforced on account of deficiency of school accommodation.

Dumfries (Parish).—The notices issued have always had the effect of bringing the children to school without prosecution.

Kirkconnel, Kirkmahoe, Langholm, and Lochmaben.—Statements similar to that in the case of Dumfries Burgh.

Penpont.—The great difficulty is to secure regularity of attendance on the part of those who are through pressure brought to school. In two instances, the attention of employers of children has been called to section 72 of the Act. This has resulted in the dismissal of the children, who have been sent to school.

General Summary.—From most of the School Boards in the county the reports are, on the whole, similar to those received from Carlaverock and Dumfries (Landward). There seems to have been no prosecution in 1874.

Thirteen Parochial Boards granted 63 applications for payment of school fees. Ten Boards refused 17 applications. Of the ten Boards, six are included in the thirteen.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT.

Borgue.—When parents are reported for not sending their children to school, a notice in writing from the clerk has hitherto been sufficient.

Buittle.—Letters from the clerk and the summoning of a few parents before the School Board have had the effect of securing the attendance of scholars.

Colvend.—Visits of compulsory officer sufficient; but 'in country parishes such as this, most parents are unwilling to send their children to school before they reach the age of between six and seven years.'

Girthon.—There has been considerable difficulty with very poor people who, though not paupers, really cannot pay fees.

Kirkpatrick-Durham.—One parent was prosecuted. Sheriff decided that School Board had failed to prove that the children's education was neglected. Cost of prosecution, £2, 5s.

New Abbey.—It is difficult to get young children between five to seven years of age, residing from one and a half to three miles from school, to attend regularly during the winter months. It is also difficult to get children from ten to thirteen years of age to attend regularly for a few weeks during the turnip-hoeing and potato-raising seasons.

General Summary.—The Boards of most of the other parishes report that the attendance at school has been increased through the visits of the officers and the other means employed to secure the education of the young.

Eleven Parochial Boards have granted 49 applications for the payment of school fees, and seven Boards (all included in the eleven) have refused 9 applications.

WIGTOWN.

Inch.—The issuing of notices to parents and guardians and personal visitation on the part of the officer 'have brought into the schools a large number of children who were formerly attending very irregularly.'

Kirkcolm.—It is generally found that the issuing of notices is quite enough to make parents and employers do their duty.

Leswalt.—It is thought that if any amending Act be proposed, a clause should be inserted to the effect, that a parent who sends his children to school and fails to pay the fees or fails to get the Poor's Board to do so for him, shall be in the same position as those who don't send children at all.

Mochrum.—The School Board have experienced no difficulty with the Parochial Board's refusal to pay fees. The kirk-session have a fund set apart to assist the poor labouring class in paying fees.

New Luce.—Nearly all the children of school age who were absent or irregular have been brought out by the officer sending notices and calling on the parents. The teacher has continued giving instruction for nothing in cases where the Parochial Board have refused to pay fees.

Penninghame.—One parent was prosecuted, convicted, and fined 5s. and expenses. Cost of prosecution, £2, 12s.

Stranraer.—The School Board have had some difficulty in carrying out the compulsory clauses of the Act:—

1*st*, It has been found that a child is sometimes sent to school for a few days after the parent has been before the Board, and is shortly afterwards withdrawn, or at least attends very irregularly.

2*d*, The Parochial Boards in some cases refuse to pay the school fees where the parents are considered by the School Board to be unable to do so.

3*d*, The want of sufficient clothing is sometimes alleged as a reason for not sending children to school, even though the Parochial Board agree to pay the fees.

General Summary.—The reports which have been received from the School Boards of the other parishes agree on the whole with what is stated by the Boards of Inch and Kirkcolm.

Ninety-four applications to fourteen Parochial Boards under section 69 were granted, and ninety-eight were refused by sixteen Boards. All the Boards in the first list are in the second also.

APPENDIX No. XX.

APPLICATION BY THE SCHOOL BOARD OF LANGTON TO VARY OR DEPART FROM THE TERMS OF CUNNINGHAM'S TRUST, SANCTIONED BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION IN TERMS OF SECT. 46 OF THE EDUCATION (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1872.

Statement on Behalf of the School Board of Langton in regard to the Cunningham Bequest.

JOHN CUNNINGHAM, tenant of Middlefield, in the parish of Langton, who died in 1852, left a small bequest (£2) to the Kirk Session of Langton as administrators.

The interest every third year was to be applied to purchase a Bible as a prize to the best 'writer and best mathematician in the Parish School.' On the first occasion of giving this prize, the sum that had accrued as interest was so small that Mr. Dunlop, the Parish Minister, added to it, and the Kirk Session took upon themselves the responsibility of allowing the principal to lie in the Savings Bank and accumulate, resolving at some future period to add the interest accruing therefrom to the principal, and from the interest arising from the principal thus augmented to be enabled to give a more adequate prize.

Mr. Dunlop, in whose keeping the money was placed, died in 1864, and the bequest was lost sight of till the beginning of July 1874, when the principal (£2), together with the whole of the interest, amounting to £1, 5s. 9d., was paid over to the Kirk Session.

The School Board of Langton, considering that this sum belonged to them, made application for, and ultimately succeeded in obtaining possession of it.

Certain of the family of Mr. Cunningham, the original bequeather, are ready to subscribe at least the sum of £1, 14s. 3d., with the view that it should be added to the sum of £1, 5s. 9d., making in all £3, to form a second fund, the interest of which is to be applied to purchase a prize for the best mathematician, while the proceeds of the original bequest shall be applied for a prize to the best writer—a best writer and a best mathematician being a rare combination. Their proposal is favourably entertained by the School Board, provided they can obtain the sanction of the Board of Education, which is the object of the present communication.

JOHN GOW, Clerk to the School Board of Langton.

6th May 1875.

GAVINTON (PARISH OF LANGTON), 15*th April* 1875.

Inter alia—

The Board resolve to ask the opinion of the Board of Education, whether they would sanction their departing so far from the terms of the Cunningham bequest as to give two prizes instead of one, seeing Mr. Cunningham's relatives have promised to add as much to the accumulated interest (£1, 5s. 9d.) as to raise it to £3 or £4; the interest of the latter sum to be laid out to purchase a prize for the best mathematician, and the interest of the original bequest (£2) to be laid out for a prize to the best writer.

Cunningham, Middlefield, the sum of two pounds sterling, left by his father, the late Mr. Cunningham, farmer, Middlefield, to be put under the charge of the Kirk Session of Langton, lent by them, and the interest to be applied every third year to purchase a pocket Bible, to be presented to the best writer and mathematician attending the Parish School for the time being, in accordance with the following clause contained in his will: 'My Trustees to pay to the Kirk Session of the Parish of Langton Two Pounds, the Interest of which to be applied every third year in the purchase of a Pocket Bible, to be given to the best writer and mathematician in the said Parish School.' The Moderator farther stated that he had lodged the above £2 with Mr. Hilston, Dunse, the agent for the Berwickshire Savings Bank, and had received a receipt for the same, etc.

No other allusions are made in the minutes during Mr. Dunlop's life to the bequest.

At EDINBURGH, the 12*th day of May* 1875.

By the Board of Education for Scotland.

The Board having considered a statement dated 6th instant, submitted by the School Board of the parish of Langton, craving sanction in terms of the 46th section of the Edinburgh (Scotland) Act, 1872, to vary or depart from the terms of a trust founded by John Cunningham, tenant of Middlefield, in the said parish, under which the interest of a sum of two pounds (£2) was to be applied every third year to purchase a prize for the best writer and mathematician in the Parish School,—

Resolved to sanction the variation of said trust proposed by the School Board in the statement foresaid, to the effect that in future the said prize should be awarded to the best writer in the school, a separate prize for mathematics having been otherwise instituted.

APPENDIX No. XXI.

ORDER UNITING THE WEST CHURCH PARISH OF MAYBOLE TO THE PARISH OF MAYBOLE IN TERMS OF SECT. 17 OF THE EDUCATION (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1872.

At Edinburgh, the 29th day of January 1875.

BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR SCOTLAND.

WHEREAS, by the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872, it is enacted (section 17) that it shall be lawful for the Board of Education, to order that any Parish which in their opinion is too small, or contains too few inhabitants to be entitled to act as a separate parish for the purposes of the said Act, shall for these purposes be added to an adjacent Parish. And whereas by the said Act (section 19) it is enacted that any order made by the Board of Education in pursuance of the powers conferred by sections 17, 18, and 19 of the said Act, shall, when no urgent reason to the contrary exists, be so framed as to come into operation at the next ensuing general election of a School Board for the locality in which it is to have effect.

And whereas the said Board of Education are of opinion that the West Church Parish of Maybole, in the county of Ayr, is too small to be entitled to act as a separate Parish for the purposes of the said Act, and that it is desirable and expedient that the said Parish should be added to the adjacent Parish of Maybole.

Now, therefore, the Board of Education, by virtue and in pursuance of the power vested in them under the said Act, do order, and it is hereby ordered, that the said West Church Parish of Maybole shall, for the purposes of the said Act, be added to, and be deemed to be part of, the Parish of Maybole, and that this order shall come into operation at the next ensuing general election of a School Board for the said Parishes, as provided by section 19 of the said Act above referred to.

APPENDIX No. XXII.

OPINION OF THE SOLICITOR-GENERAL RESPECTING THE BORROWING POWERS OF SCHOOL BOARDS, OBTAINED BY THE PUBLIC WORKS LOAN COMMISSIONERS, AND COMMUNICATED BY THEM TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

YOU are requested, on behalf of the Public Works Loan Commissioners, to advise whether the School Board of the borough of Perth can borrow and give a valid security for so much of the proposed Loan of £10,550 as is required for the purposes numbered 5 and 6 in the sanction of the Board of Education, or any of them. And generally as to the purposes for which School Boards can borrow and the Commissioners can lend, under section 45 of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872.

Copy Opinion.

In considering the purposes for which School Boards are authorized to borrow on the security of the school fund and school rate, it is necessary to keep in view the marked distinction which exists between the extent of these purposes as defined by the 45th section of the Act, and the extent of the powers connected with schools and schoolmasters' houses conferred on School Boards by the 37th section. The latter clause authorizes (1) the purchase of sites and the erection of schools and teachers' houses thereon; (2) the purchase or leasing of existing schools and teachers' houses; (3) the improvement; (4) the enlargement; and (5) the furnishing of any school under the management of the Board. The 45th clause, however, does not authorize the School Board to pay for these objects, all of them legitimate, with borrowed money; it sanctions borrowing for two purposes only—(1) for providing; and (2) for enlarging a school-house. The terms of section 45 appear to me plainly to exclude these objects contemplated by section 37, viz. (1) the improvement; and (2) the furnishing of existing schools. It is, in my opinion, the obvious policy of the statute to lay the whole expense of improving and furnishing existing school houses, in all cases where improvements or furnishings are required, upon the present body of ratepayers, and to impose no liability upon future rates and ratepayers, except in the case of a new school-house being built or purchased, or of substantial additions being made to an existing school-house, so as to afford accommodation for an increased number of scholars.

Having thus explained my views in regard to the policy and sound construction of section 45 of the Act, I proceed to notice in detail the purposes for which the School Board of Perth propose to borrow from the memorialists, and which are numbered (5) and (6) in the sanction given by the Board of Education.

(5 a.) The Southern District School.—It appears to me that the proposed alterations upon this school, as sanctioned by the Board of Education, do not fall within the scope of section 45 of the Act, and that the monies required in order to meet the expense of such alterations cannot competently be made a charge upon the School Fund and future rates. I am, however, inclined to think that the expense of carrying out the altered plans, suggested in the report of the architect of the School Board, but not yet sanctioned by the Board of Education, might be legally defrayed out of monies borrowed under section 45.

(5 b.) The Watergate School.—In my opinion the costs of purchasing and laying out the proposed addition to the playground form a charge which may be legally defrayed out of monies borrowed under section 45. The expense of all the other proposed improvements must, in my opinion, be defrayed out of the current rates.

In the case of both these schools I am of opinion that the alterations contemplated by the School Board are of the nature of improvements, the cost of which must be paid for out of current rates, and not borrowed.

(6.) The Academy.—It is, in my opinion, somewhat doubtful whether the full sum of £1500 already borrowed for the purpose of improving the Academy is truly a legitimate charge upon future ratepayers. But I have no doubt that the additional sum now found to be necessary in order to complete the improvement, and fittings, and furniture of the Academy ought, in terms of the statute, to be borne exclusively by the present body of ratepayers.

APPENDIX No. XXIII.

MEMORIAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR SCOTLAND FOR OPINION OF COUNSEL REGARDING THE PREPAYMENT OF SCHOOL FEES AND THE DUTIES OF THE ACCOUNTANT.

THE 53rd section of the Education Act of Scotland (1872) is as follows:—'The School Board shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained with respect to higher class public schools, fix the school fees to be paid for attendance at each school under their management, and such fees shall be paid to the treasurer of the Board, and a separate account shall be kept of the amount of the fees derived from each school, and it shall be lawful for the School Board, if they see fit, to pay to the teachers of a school the fees derived from such school, and to divide the same among them as the School Board shall determine.'

The 69th section of the Act provides that 'It shall be the duty of every parent to provide elementary education in writing, reading, and arithmetic for his children between five and thirteen years of age, and if unable from poverty to pay therefor, to apply to the Parochial Board of the parish or burgh in which he resides, and it shall be the duty of the said Board to pay out of the poor fund the ordinary and reasonable fees for the elementary education of every such child, or such part of such fees as the parent shall be unable to pay in the event of such Board being satisfied of the inability of the parent to pay such fees.'

The rubric of the 70th clause is as follows:—'Defaulting parents may be proceeded against by the Procurator-Fiscal on a certificate from the Board.'

In many districts of the country, School Boards, with the view of insuring regular attendance and payment of fees, have adopted the plan of making the school fees payable in advance. In some districts where this has not hitherto been the practice, parents and others have objected to pay in advance, and a good deal of opposition has been manifested.

The chairman of Kilbirnie School Board says:—'Towards the close of last year, the School Board of Kilbirnie unanimously determined, after mature deliberation, to adopt the system of prepayment of fees in the schools under their charge. Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed by a section of the parents, and several refused prepayment. The system came into operation in January last, and the feeling against prepayment is rather increasing and spreading to other parishes than diminishing. . . . They (the School Board) have refrained hitherto from resorting to legal steps to recover the fees, in the hope that by meeting and reasoning with the leaders of the agitation against prepayment, they might be induced to see the matter in the proper light. This, however, has not produced much result, and the School Board must either give up what they believe to be a very necessary and proper regulation, or resort to legal steps to recover the fees from those who object to the regulation. . . . It is necessary to explain that our prepayments are monthly.'

Some Parochial Boards also have objected to pay the school fees in advance. In some instances School Boards have proposed to exclude from schools the children of parents who refuse to pay in advance, and to proceed against such parents as defaulters in terms of the 70th section above alluded to; and in other cases the School Boards have proposed to sue the parents directly for the amount of the fees.

It is believed that in many schools throughout Scotland—parish and also adventure schools, such as those so common in Edinburgh—the payment for school fees quarterly in advance has been an invariable custom. In other districts manifestly an opposite practice has prevailed.

Query 1. Is it competent for School Boards to insist that the school fees payable shall be paid in advance before the children are admitted to the school, or can payment of school fees only be enforced monthly or quarterly after the children have been instructed?

Counsel is referred to the 48th section of the Education (Scotland) Act, which relates to the appointment of a treasurer to the School Board, who is required 'to keep and preserve in a proper book or books an accurate account of the school fund, and of all other property and funds under the administration of the School Board, and of the expenditure thereof.'

The same section farther provides: 'Once in each year an account showing the money receipts and payments of the Board, and the state of the funds and property under their charge shall be made up and transmitted, together with the vouchers, by the treasurer to the accountant of the Board of Education, who shall audit and report upon the same, and re-transmit the same to the treasurer, to be preserved as the School Board shall direct.'

Query 2. Counsel is requested to advise the memorialists whether, under the 'duties' entrusted to the accountant of the Board of Education by the 48th section, it be his right and duty to disallow any charges in the School Board accounts which he considers illegal or extravagant.

Opinion.

1. We are of opinion that it is within the power of every School Board, according to their discretion, not only to fix the amount of the fees to be paid for attendance at each school under their management, but also to determine the time and place of payment. It appears to us that the prepayment of school fees is not only a lawful but a reasonable condition for the Board to impose.

2. We do not think that it was the intention of the Legislature that the accountant should discharge the functions of a proper taxing officer, such as the Auditor of Court, or that he has power under the statute to disallow accounts or charges incurred and paid by School Boards. It appears to us that his statutory duty is limited to an examination of the accounts and vouchers transmitted by School Boards, in terms of section 48 of the Act, with a view to reporting thereon for the information of the ratepayers and of Parliament. It is, in our opinion, his duty to report what charges are duly vouched, and such as are unvouched or not sufficiently vouched; and also to report upon all items of expenditure which in his estimation have been illegally or unnecessarily incurred. The ratepayers must then judge for themselves whether they will take steps for having these items disallowed—a result which we are of opinion they cannot enforce except by an action at law.

APPENDIX No. XXIV.

Memorial for the Board of Education for Scotland for Opinion of Counsel relative to the Prosecution of Parents for neglecting to send their Children to School.

The 70th section of the Education Act of 1872 bears that: 'It shall be the duty of every School Board to appoint an officer to ascertain and report to the School Board what parents resident within the parish or burgh have failed and omitted, and are failing and omitting, to perform the duty of providing for their children . . . elementary education.' By the same section it is enacted that the 'School Board is hereby authorized to summon any such parent to appear before the School Board at any meeting thereof . . . and if he shall either fail to appear, or on his appearance to satisfy the School Board that he has not failed in such duty without reasonable excuse, it shall be lawful to, and shall be the duty of the School Board to certify in writing that he has been, and is grossly and without reasonable excuse, failing to discharge the duty of providing elementary education for his child or children. . . . And on such certificate being transmitted to the Procurator-Fiscal of the county or district of the county in which the parent resides, or other person appointed by the School Board, he shall prosecute such parent before the Sheriff of the county for such failure of duty as is in the certificate specified, and on conviction the parent shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings, or to imprisonment. All fines recovered under this clause shall be paid into the school fund.'

Section 71 provides that 'Every prosecution under the preceding section shall be in the form prescribed by the "Summary Procedure (Scotland) Act, 1864," and the judgment of the Sheriff therein shall be final, and shall not be subject to review.'

The same section bears: 'And expenses not exceeding twenty shillings may be awarded by the Sheriff against the parent complained of, but it shall not be lawful to award expenses against the Procurator-Fiscal, and the reasonable expenses of the prosecution, as the same may be certified by the Sheriff, shall, in so far as not awarded against and recovered from the parent, be paid by the School Board, on whose certificate it proceeded, out of the school fund.'

Several cases of prosecution under sections 70 and 71 of the Act have taken place: Thus the School Board of Port-Glasgow raised prosecutions against three several parents in the course of the month of January last, in connection with which they employed Mr. Robert Blair, Procurator-Fiscal of Renfrewshire, to prosecute the same. There are herewith sent three accounts incurred by the School Board of Port-Glasgow to Mr. Blair, amounting respectively to £4, 6s., £4, 6s. 1d., and £3, 16s. These accounts were taxed by the Auditor of the Sheriff Court of Greenock, and certified as correct by the Sheriff-Substitute at Greenock. Cases of the same kind have occurred at Kilmarnock and West Kilbride.

The accounts incurred to Mr. Blair amount together to £12, 8s. 1d., and the School Board of Port-Glasgow complain that if the school funds are to be burdened with expenses of this amount to Procurators-Fiscal for such prosecutions, the 70th and 71st sections of the Act will become practically inoperative, as it is not to be expected that School Boards will apply the school funds for the prosecution of parents, when their doing so might be attended with such a large expense. Doubts have accordingly been raised whether the Procurators-Fiscal for Scotland are entitled to charge for duties performed by them for behoof of School Boards, seeing that Procurators-Fiscal are now, almost throughout the whole of Scotland, paid not as they formerly used to be by their fees, but by fixed salaries. It is in regard to this question that the present memorial is sent to counsel.

Before 1850 the invariable practice was to pay Procurators-Fiscal according to the work performed by them. In 1850, a movement was made having for its object to pay Fiscals by salary; and an experiment appears to have been made in the case of certain counties, but that was superseded in 1851, when a new arrangement was made, which was adopted after a good deal of communication between the Treasury and Mr. Henderson, the Queen's and Lord

Treasurer's Remembrancer, and the Lord Advocate at the time. The arrangement was set forth in a minute of the Treasury of 25th May 1851.

The memorialists' agent has examined that minute at the Exchequer here, and the only portion of it which he considers it necessary to lay before counsel is as follows:—'It is to be distinctly understood that such salaries are not only to be in place of the profits which have hitherto arisen from all criminal business of the nature and to the extent which the Procurators-Fiscal have heretofore conducted, but shall be deemed to cover and include the cases of sudden or suspicious death, and all criminal business of the description hitherto defrayed at the Exchequer, which the Lord Advocate or the Sheriff may at any time direct the Procurators-Fiscal to perform, in connection with the official duties of their offices.' The salary attached to the district of Renfrewshire, within which Port-Glasgow is situated, was £590, both in relation to cases reported and not reported to Crown Counsel. For the Kilmarnock District of Ayr, the salary affixed by the minute of 25th May 1851 was £580, but that was increased within a year or two thereafter to the sum of £660, which is at present the salary of the office. It will be kept in view that these salaries include clerks' fees, stationery, and all other expenses of a like description, but not travelling expenses or other outlays. Counsel should also be informed that Procurators-Fiscal, notwithstanding the arrangement of 1851, are allowed to charge as against the Crown for fees in bastardy, ultima hæres, and treasure-trove cases, when such arise within their respective districts, and their services are required in connection with them. It is scarcely necessary to remind counsel that the appointment of Procurators-Fiscal lies with the Sheriff of the county to which they are attached, without the Treasury or the Exchequer having any voice in the appointment.

Counsel will observe that, by the 70th section, it is not imperative on the School Board to employ the Procurators-Fiscal, but that 'any other person appointed by the School Board shall prosecute such parent . . . before the Sheriff.' The memorialists wish to be informed whether under this section the School Boards can competently employ their own secretary or other officer to prosecute parents for neglecting to send their children to school, and whether, if they do, any objection against the appearances of such an officer could be made, either by the Sheriff or by the Procurators of the Court before which the case would fall to be prosecuted.

Queries.

1. Are Procurators-Fiscal entitled to charge for duties performed by them under the 70th and 71st sections of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872, or are they bound, in respect of the salary paid to them as Procurators-Fiscal, to execute these duties without any further consideration than their outlays?
2. Is it competent for the School Board of a parish to appoint any other agent of Court than the Procurator-Fiscal to conduct prosecutions under the 70th and 71st sections of said Act?
3. Can the School Board employ its own secretary or any other person to conduct such prosecution whether such other person be a Procurator of Court or no?

Opinion.

1. We are of opinion that the prosecution, under sections 70 and 71 of the Education Act, of parents who fail and omit to provide elementary education for their children, does not form part of the duties of a Procurator-Fiscal, for which he is remunerated by salary. We accordingly think that whenever the Fiscal is, in such cases, directed by the School Board to prosecute, he is entitled to remuneration for his professional services.

2. We are of opinion that it is.

3. Any person appointed by the School Board may, in our opinion, become the prosecutor in cases falling under sections 70 and 71 of the Act. But if such person be not an agent qualified to practise before the Sheriff Court, he will not be allowed to conduct the prosecution personally, and must employ the aid and services of a regular legal practitioner.
